Mr. Kellogg in California.
T. R. on Japan.
War, With Comic Opera.
War Money Scarce.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HEARST RANCH,
San Simeon, Cal., Feb. 5.

MR. FRANK B. KELLOGG, formerly Secretary of State, a visitor at this ranch, drove up from Los Angeles yesterday in his 16-cylinder Cadillac, bringing this writer and Mr. James Dixon, of Los Angeles.

Mr. Kellogg believes that prohibition will play a most important part in the next campaign, also that the nations of the world can be influenced only by public opinion. Therefore, no messages, protests or entreaties, sent privately, can exert any influence. Publicity is necessary.

The former Secretary of State, in excellent health, face ruddy, hair thick, complaining of speed laws that will not allow him to drive 70 miles an hour, shows no signs of his 75 years, that include 55 years of hard work.

ALL THE TALK everywhere is about the Japanese war in which China plays the part of the punching bag.

Newspapers republish Theodore Roosevelt's letter to President Taft, written in 1910, saying:

"Our vital interest is to keep the Japanese out of our country and at the same time to preserve the good will of Japan. The vital interest of Japan, on the other hand, is in Manchuria and Korea."

WARNING TAFT against "taking any steps as regards Manchuria which will give the Japanese cause to feel that we are hostile to them," Theodore Roosevelt added:

"If the Japanese choose to follow a course of conduct to which we are adverse, we cannot stop it, unless we are prepared to go to war; and a successful war about Manchuria would require a fleet as good as that of England, plus an army as good as that of Germany."

ROOSEVELT, IN 1910, had no thought of airplanes, could not imagine that Japan would be conquering Manchuria with them, at her ease. Otherwise he might have suggested a flock of fighting planes as numerous as the pigeons on St. Mark's square, in Venice, backed by a fleet of submarines as great as that of Japan.

TWO CONFLICTING statements in yesterday's news would interest Roosevelt. One said that if Japan continues ignoring our pitiful appeals to be good, American citizens in China will be moved to Manila, and protected there, on American home grounds.

Another report said this country and England would join in another protest.

It seems clear that Japan has adopted a program and proposes to go through with it, wisely concluding that no western country will do more than talk.

WHILE YOU READ rather dry "copy," about Shanghai, conditions are not pleasant there. Bombs are dropping, from planes, on crowded city quarters. Japanese battleships are sending explosive shells into the city.

Many human beings, including women and children, are blown to pieces.

THERE ARE FEATURES of comic opera in the proceedings. While the bombarding and killing proceed, the Japanese commanding admiral is told that Uncle Sam's fighting ship Houston has appeared at the mouth of the river.

Immediately the Japanese admiral commanding "breaks out" an American flag, at his masthead, while the band on the Houston plays the Japanese national anthem.

MR. MELLON'S appointment as ambassador to England will interest that country. The arrival of the "second richest man in the world," President's Harding's description of Mr. Mellon, will not leave the British cold. Perhaps he will endow something, or several things, since his boy went to a British university.

Perhaps he will find a way for Britain to "welch with honor."

CONCERNING THE propaganda statement that cancellation of Europe's debts to America would restore Europe's prosperity, and make all hands happy, you will be interested in this statement of a distinguished and well-informed American statesman:

"If Europe's nations paid in full what they borrowed from us in war, it would not make a difference of three per cent in the budget of any one of them."

AMERICAN AND ENGLISH bankers announce that their minds and pockets are "closed to war loans." Not a dollar or a diminished pound for fighting. Japan, it is said, has arrangements with France that will take care of Japanese borrowing, and some of our many barrels of United States gold coin, sent to France, may be nicely hoarded in the homes of Japanese soldiers' widows.

British and American bankers, when they hear "foreign bonds" mentioned, tremble violently, recalling an incident related by a distinguished New York merchant. He enjoyed, at rare intervals, before prohibition, "just a little rye whisky." Once when he had a cold, his mild tonic was administered and swallowed, before he realized that there was castor oil with the whisky. He could not

Operations Fail to Save Owner of Pittsburgh Ball Club After Long Illness

Barney Dreyfuss, principal owner and president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, died at 11:42 this morning at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, after an illness of approximately two months.

Dreyfuss operated the Pirates for 31 years.

News of the death of the Pittsburgh baseball magnate was flashed to the home office by Dreyfuss' son-in-law, William E. Benswanger, immediately after he had passed away.

Funeral services will be held from the family home in the Schenley Apartments Sunday or Monday.

Benswanger, with Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss and her daughter, Mrs. Benswanger, who was Miss Eleanor Dreyfuss, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Samuel W. Dreyfuss, were at the bedside when death came. The wife and daughter had been constantly in attendance on the patient for many weeks. Benswanger hurried to New York a week ago when Dreyfuss' condition took a turn for the worse.

The dean of baseball owners and magnates, Dreyfuss was in apparent good health when serious illness overtook him early in December. He arranged to attend the annual baseball meetings in Chicago, but his local doctors, after a preliminary treatment, instructed him to go to New York instead, to undergo a thorough examination.

The specialists in New York found glandular trouble, and an operation was performed within a week after he arrived at the institution. The surgery did not completely correct the trouble, and a more serious operation followed.

Dreyfuss rallied satisfactorily from the second ordeal and for several days he appeared to be gaining strength. His doctors, however, informed the family that recovery would be slow.

A new crisis then developed and death followed.

Dreyfuss would have been 67 had he lived until February 23.

The death of the Pirate owner occurred almost a year after the passing of his only son, Samuel W. Dreyfuss, who died February 22, 1931.

Tax Shock Looms

By B. C. FORBES

THE PEOPLE of this country had better prepare themselves for a tax shock on March 15.

Income tax payments will show a most sensational decrease.

Last year the government received from individuals income taxes totaling $473,689,563. Of this, $396,597,356 came from citizens who had incomes of $25,000 or more.

I know no rich man who did not during 1931 sell enough securities at enough loss to bring his taxable income down to only a fraction of the previous amount.

NOT ONLY Washington, but everybody interested in seeing the government properly supplied with funds, will be dumbfounded when the March 15 payments are footed up. The shrinkage will exceed the most pessimistic estimates and will hurl a staggering problem at Congress.

The drastic drop in payments by individuals will be seriously aggravated by the decline in tax receipts from corporations. Last year these reached $618,246,431. Corporate profits shriveled so much

MELLON OUT, OPEN BREAK APPARENT

Hoover Willingly Sends Pittsburgher to London; Relations Never Cordial

By MARK SHIELDS

(Copyright, 1932, by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph)

The effort of President Hoover to camouflage the split between the White House and Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon has failed completely.

Mr. Mellon's effort to cooperate in this political deception, his sense of party loyalty stronger than his personal feelings and disgust with the trend of affairs in Washington, has proved equally futile.

Mr. Mellon accepted appointment as Ambassador to Great Britain as an alternative to a complete severance of his participation in public life and a return to his private business affairs in Pittsburgh.

OPEN JOB SAVES HOOVER

President Hoover not only was willing, but at least mildly suggestive, that Mellon should resign the Treasury. However, he was fearful of the political consequences in some financial circles should the Pittsburgher abruptly leave the administration in advance of the coming campaign. The President urged Mellon to accept the British post in an endeavor to cover what appears to have been a real break in relations which never were warm.

The ambassadorship was open through the providential—for Hoover—resignation of Charles G. Dawes several weeks ago. Had not this opening been available at the moment, Mellon would have quit public life entirely, as there was no other position within the gift of the President to which he

GIRL TAKES GAS IN LOVE PACT

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—A strange story of attempted death by asphyxiation over a broken "love pact" was told by police today in connection with the arrest of Catherine Nugent, 37, former Pittsburgh stenographer, who was to be arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Police said they were called to Miss Nugent's rooming house by neighbors who complained of excessive noise in her apartment. They found the woman in a stupor on the bed, they said, while gas fumes seeped from a nearby heater.

A suitcase in the room contained a love pact, they said, which had been drawn up and witnessed by a notary public.

In the document provided, they asserted, that "the party of the first part" (Miss Nugent) was not to go out with other men "without the consent of the party of the second part," who was not to "imbibe too freely" and was not to stay out "too late at night."

Another roomer in the same house, Philip Gattie, 33, also was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

The present Mrs. Calles is the general's second wife, his first having died at Nogales, Sonora, about five years ago.

GRENET FACES GRAND JURY

Assemblyman S. J. Grenet, who eluded subpena servers for a month, appeared suddenly as a witness before the February grand jury this afternoon as Prosecutor A. T. Park reopened investigation of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley.

After Grenet had been quizzed for 25 minutes, a banker in response to summons was quetioned.

Grenet was served with a subpena last night on his return from Chicago by County Detective Lawrence Kline, Park said.

Grenet was wanted to testify before the December grand jury, which indicted Schooley, his aide, Arthur G. Burgoyne, and Lasalle Girts, realtor, presumably as to where money came from used in paying off Mayor Kline's campaign notes in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

CHINESE SEIZE I. N. S. WRITER

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Edward Hunter, International News Service correspondent in Manchuria, has been arrested by Chinese troops between Changchung and Harbin, according to dispatches received here today from Tokio.

One dispatch said that Hunter had been seized by the Chinese and was "missing."

Gen. Araki, Japanese minister of war, has wirelessed Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, to try to effect Hunter's release.

At the same time Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, nominal commander of the Chinese troops in Manchuria, has been asked to wireless his commanders and attempt to learn Hunter's whereabouts.

The International News Service correspondent, who has scored amazing and brilliant beats since he went to Mukden last October—the first neutral correspondent of any nation to penetrate the Manchurian fighting area—cabled International News Service Wednesday night that he had left Mukden for Harbin to cover the entry of the main Japanese force into the North Manchurian city.

SHANGHAI SHELL-TORN; GIBBONS TELLS OF FIERCE FIGHTING

BULLETIN.

By FLOYD GIBBONS

SHANGHAI, Saturday, Feb. 6.—Japanese military commanders early today were preparing for a new offensive in the Chapei area at daybreak.

They landed 500 more Marines in the International Settlement shortly before midnight.

A day-long artillery and machine-gun battle had reduced the entire Chapei area to shambles. Many shells landed in the neutral zone, damaging buildings.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—The United States troopship Chaumont docked at 6 o'clock tonight on the north shore of the Whangpoo River, bringing 1,000 men of the Thirty-first Infantry and 100 Marines from Manila.

The American Transport warped alongside the Chinese merchants' docks under the guns of a Japanese destroyer moored in midstream.

The Shanghai business section shook and reverberated to the shocks of heavy explosions as the Chinese-Japanese conflict ringed the International City with a circle of bursting bombs, hurtling projectiles and withering volleys of machine gun lead.

Air, land and sea forces all engaged in the fiercest fighting, with the issue still undecided as both belligerents made conflicting claims of victory.

China appeared to have brought fighting airplanes into play, but the actual extent of air force activity was cloaked in mystery.

Mayor Wu Te-Chen, of Shanghai, officially denied that Chinese airplanes were participating in the battle, but reports that eight Chinese planes had arrived at Hungjao airport just outside of Shanghai persisted.

AMERICAN SEES PLANE

I have just talked with one American who swears he was at the airdrome when a crippled Chinese fighting plane, a Vought-Corsair model, the same as is used in the American Navy, landed with its wings and fuselage full of bullet holes and its Chinese pilot fainting at the stick from loss of blood. My informant said this lad was shot in a battle with two Japanese planes.

One Japanese bombing plane was shot down by Chinese anti-aircraft fire in view of American Marine observers only 800 yards away.

As the plane crashed, Chinese infantry groups wriggled across the ground and finished the fallen aviators with bayonet thrusts. Japanese aviators aloft tried to go to the assistance of their fallen comrades by swooping over the spot and raking the ground with machine-gun fire to drive off the Chinese.

This setback for the Japanese caused the Chinese to stage a riotous celebration, erroneously accrediting the victory to some unnamed and entirely mythical Chinese "Richthofen," and was chiefly responsible for wide-spread reports that the Chinese were offering concerted aerial resistance to the Japanese onslaught.

Another report said a young Chinese pilot took up an old plane at 5 a. m. The craft buckled at an altitude of 2,000 feet

TODAY IN WAR ZONE

International News Service.

The International Settlement in Shanghai reverberated today to the shocks of heavy artillery fire in the most extensive battle between Japanese and Chinese forces so far.

The American transport Chaumont arrived at Shanghai, accompanied by seven United States destroyers, carrying 1,000 Infantrymen and 100 Marines.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 Japanese infantrymen were landed from two Japanese transports.

Chinese aircraft went into action for the first time and a Japanese bombing plane was shot down by anti-aircraft gunners in Shainhai, Chinese infantrymen finishing off the fliers with bayonet thrusts.

Meanwhile, Japanese troops completed their occupation of Harbin, as Tokio reports from Vladivostock stated 10,000 Soviet troops were massed in anticipation of emergencies.

and crashed behind the Chinese lines, bursting into flames and killing the pilot.

PLANES DROP LEAFLETS

Still another rumor said that Japanese planes were dropping leaflets written in Chinese characters stating that American troops had arrived as Japan's allies to fight with the Japanese against the Chinese war lords and deliver China from military tyranny.

"Oh, boy, what a gambling joint this is, with stacked cards and loaded dice and mirrors behind the visitor's chair. It's a good time to say nothing and play it close to the vest and be ready for anything if the lights go out."

Meanwhile the khaki-clad Yanks, on the decks and superstructure of the Chaumont, wearing the old felt campaign hats, their upturned faces tanned by the tropical Philippine sun, watched heavy Japanese bombing seaplanes with their bomb racks loaded with death-dealing missiles sail high abmove on the way to drop bombs on the Chinese city.

A heavy artillery fire continued late this afternoon.

A strong wind from the sea is fanning many fresh fires carrying a thick column of smoke as well as burnt paper down into the faces of Nanking road shoppers.

The British protested this morning when shells dropped into their zone of the International Settlement. In response to the protest one Chinese and one Japanese junior officer arrived at the British headquarters to apologize.

The British didn't know whether the objectionable missiles were of Japanese or Chinese origin. Neither did the apologetic messengers, but it was their duty to apologize, so they did.

As the Chaumont was docked the Yanks of the 31st Division looked longingly ashore and asked:

"Where do we go from here?"

French, Italian, British and Portuguese officers mingled on the dock with waiting United States Marine and Navy officers in a medley of international uniforms while up and down the crowded river liners, freighters, ferryboats, coal barges, Chinese junks and sampans all pushed and crowded.

Moored at the dock astern of the Chaumont's berth was a squat, dark gray Japanese troop ship which arrived this morning with several thousand Nippon Blue-jacket reinforcements straight from Japan.

The ship unloaded tons of equipment and supplies as well as large cannon and three-inch field pieces.

Tall, bearded East Indian Sikhs with heads bound by yellow turbans, herded Chinese coolies within the shipyards, while the streets beyond the yards swarmed with full-armed patrols of Japanese sailors with bayonetted rifles.

SHIVER IN COLD

The Yanks, pressing against the rails of the Chaumont on crowded decks, shivered in their overcoats unaccustomed to the severe cold after the Philippine heat.

The eager doughboys all rigged out in full equipment and heavy marching order pressing against the Chaumont's side rails are due for a disappointment.

There will be no thrill of a new town for them tonight—no excitement of combat, none of the widely-reputed lights of Shanghai's "Little Paris" because debarkation has been postponed until 8 o'clock in the morning.

The doughboys may not like it but this arrangement is certainly welcome news to Americans in Shanghai who realize that debarkation tonight would have necessitated entire detachments having to march through the Japanese defense zone in which hundreds of Chinese snipers have operated during the last four days and the possibilities of some untoward incident or a clash either with Chinese irregulars or Japanese patrols by mistake in the dark were sufficiently strong to demand wise consideration.

HOOKER CALLS

Col. B. S. Hooker, commanding the fourth regiment of Marines was the first man up the Chaumont's gangplank, followed by his aides and staff.

He was received on the bridge by Col. Gasser, commanding the Thirty-first.

Hooker, of the Marines, is senior of Gasser of the regular Army, so it is probable the former will command the combined Marine and regular forces ashore as the Marine commandant the 2nd Division in France.

Cols. Gasser and Hooker and their staffs conferred and plans were laid out for debarkation in the morning.

The Yanks aboard the Chaumont were greatly excited and keen and eager concerning the war scare and the thrill of their sudden midnight departure from Manila, but more thrilled by the first actual sights of hostilities they witnessed when the Chaumont passed the ruins of the Woosung forts at the mouth of the Whangpoo River.

They saw river banks and retaining walls pitted and pock-marked with craters from air bombs and naval shells and the lifeless bodies of Chinese soldiers lying unburied on the beach.

They saw the shattered roofs and gaping walls and burning homes of the village of Woosung located on a creek one mile north of the forts.

BODIES IN RIVER

They saw bodies floating in the river along the Chaumont's route.

Japanese naval guns lobbed off while the Chaumont steamed slowly by but the planes continued their bombing operations inland while doughboys and gobs from the liberty and officers with binoculars on the bridge followed the flight of the planes and watched the bombs falling below.

HOSTILITIES AT PEAK

Hostilities definitely reached their highest pitch this morning when the fighting spread out covering an area of some hundred square miles extending from points on the Nanking Railroad south of Shanghai, to the Woosung Forts.

The area included all the triangle of territory between the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers.

Here the summary of the complicated mess which is getting hotter hourly as communication lines grow fewer and rumors wilder:

Chinese reinforcements hurriedly brought north overnight succeeded in disbodging and pushing back Japanese sailors who managed to advance into the eastern fringes of the Chinese city in the direction of the North station.

The Chinese-Japanese artillery duel is increasing in intensity as new supplies and munitions reach the gunners of both sides. The Chinese are effectively employing guns of the highest caliber and some heavy field pieces located on the railroad to the west of the Chinese city.

BOMBERS MORE ACTIVE

Japanese bombing planes increased in number and activity dropping more bombs on the Chinese ruins and lines surrounding the North station but failing to dislodge the defenders. Chinese anti-aircraft cannon are still firing and still out of control, with shells going wild in all directions.

Fires in both the Chinese city and the Japanese zone of the International Settlement, after burning all night appear to be spreading as the increased artillery activity prevents all efforts to fight the flames which now are fed by gas mains broken by air bombs.

Japanese destroyers patrolling the west bank of the Whangpoo River between here and Woosung are reported to be machine gunning and light shelling all traffic on the Chinese road running alongside the river bank. "I got caught out on that road last night in a futile attempt to reach Woosung."

American tourists aboard the liner President McKinley expected today must sail up the Whangpoo through the midst of shelling and machine gunning, which already has disrupted shipping to such an extent that all schedules have gone by the board.

The American flagship Houston and destroyers are located at several buoys and docks down the river keeping steam up prepared to shift their berths if the fighting approaches.

The Dollar Line's offices received a rush of applicants this morning for passage on the President Grant expected to depart from here for Hong Kong tomorrow but it is now booked to capacity with all berths of all classes filled. Four or five hundred were disappointed when they failed to get passage.

The applicants are mostly wives and children of foreign residents, about half of them American. Menfolks heads of families and business representatives are remaining.

The President McKinley expected to leave here tomorrow for Kobe enroute to Seattle also is fully booked. British steamers bound for Hong Kong, Manila or other points of the Far East also are fully booked.

With hostilities spreading and reinforcements of land and sea forces of all principal powers arriving or en route and with the international situation growing more tense and more complicated, foreign residents at Shanghai have begun making tentative plans for the evacuation of their women and children, not waiting for orders of their governments.

FLEEING NANKING

Morning papers brought word the evacuation of foreigners from Nanking had commenced, but the same papers carried the reassurance of American Consul-General Cunningham that it was not necessary to evacuate Americans from Shanghai.

Foreign groups in hotel lobbies, clubs and shipping offices are divided on the subject of evacuation.

Some hold that it is better to evacuate the Americans in Shanghai than to expose the whole nation to the danger of being brought into war, while others maintain such a peace move would be unbecoming and unfitting to the dignity of the United States as a world power.

They say that if it were once made it would be a serious blow to American prestige and to the outposts of all essential American foreign trade around the world, and particularly in the Far East.

Japanese Planes Bomb Chinese Troop Train

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Japanese airplanes rained bombs on a Chinese troop train moving into Chapei today, taking heavy toll.

Flying high over the Chapei area, the planes spotted the train moving up with reinforcements for the 19th Chinese Army, which has been resisting artillery bombardment for several days.

They swooped low enough to cut loose with their bombs and one of them struck a closed car, splitting it from end to end and scattering the bodies of Chinese soldiers over a wide area.

The Associated Press correspondent counted 16 bodies strewn along the railroad track. The bodies of mangled horses also lay among the wreckage.

Before they attacked the train the planes dropped 12 bombs on Chenju University, wrecking one large building and setting fire to two others.

ARMY AND NAVY MAP COURSE IN FAR EAST

Government Still Hopeful Crisis Will Be Averted, But Prepares for Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The Far Eastern disturbance showed signs of approaching a turning point today, with the American government still hopeful, but prepared to face whatever new dangers may develop.

While Secretary Stimson was occupied with further peace overtures the highest chiefs of the Army and Navy, Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Pratt, again were closeted together at the Navy Department.

Pratt and MacArthur disclosed nothing of the nature of their conference. With new naval and military forces on the scene at Shanghai, the feeling was somewhat easier, but it was plain the Army and Navy preferred to take no unnecessary chances.

If further American help is needed to protect American lives, the government will be ready to act swiftly, although the peace proposals remain the major concern for the moment.

Powers to Make New Plea to Japanese

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—A new note will be sent to Japan by the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy, associated in presenting the five-point proposal designed to end the Sino-Japanese conflict, it was announced by the foreign office today.

The announcement was made while Foreign Office officials were studying the text of Japan's reply to the original peace proposals. While the Japanese reply was disappointing, officials held it did not exclude the possibility of compromise.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Secretary of State Stimson today was rallying the principal powers of the world to a definite plan to bring peace in the Orient.

Faced with the certainty that Japan is pursuing the same tactics at Shanghai that she pursued in the occupation of Manchuria, Stimson moved to enlist support of the major powers for concerted action to stem Japan's aggression.

China Spurns Terms Laid Down by Japan

NANKING, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Japanese reply to the powers' peace proposals, delivered last night, is not acceptable to the Chinese government, foreign office officials announced today.

China, it was stated will insist that any solution of the Shanghai situation must also embrace a settlement of the Manchurian controversy, with which it is held to be inseparably linked.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The Japanese government today drafted a statement justifying all its military activities at Shanghai, which probably will be issued tomorrow.

The government it is believed will announce that in view of the prospects of complete success over the Chinese within the next 36 hours, peace negotiations may become unnecessary, though it is still willing to proceed along the lines laid down in the answer to the Powers last night.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Japanese soldiers under Gen. Jiro Tamon today captured Harbin, last important stand of the Chinese in Manchuria, after almost a week of sanguinary battles with the troops of Gen. Ting Chao.

JUDD LOVE TALE TO BE DENIED

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Secrets of her love life with J. J. (Happy Jack) Halloran, Phoenix millionaire "playboy," bared before a jury, Winnie Ruth Judd, the young wife of a middle-aged physician, spent a legal holiday in jail today as her attorneys prepared to challenge the startling testimony of Dr. Joseph Catton, Stanford University psychiatrist.

Court was recessed today because of observing of Arbor Day, a legal holiday in Arizona.

Dr. Catton said Ruth, accused of killing Agnes Ann Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose mangled bodies were shipped in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles, was sane, and knew the difference between right and wrong.

Dr. Catton said he tried to get Mrs. Judd to tell him the whole story of the double killing and that she replied she did not see where it would do any good and "would make trouble for others."

WATER RATE IN SUBURBS HIT

James W. Jones, of 1106 Peermont avenue, Dormont, today filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg against the South Pittsburgh Water Company, charging excessive rates and poor quality of water.

He asserted the rates in the South Hills district are double those in the city of Pittsburgh.

Jones cited a charge of 33 cents a thousand gallons for the first 12,000 gallons and 40 cents for the next 238,000 gallons, plus an $8 a year service charge. He compared this with a 20-cents-a-thousand-gallons charge for the first 250,000 gallons in the city, to which is added, he said, only a $2-a-year service charge.

Roosevelt to View Shanghai War Zone

SEATTLE, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who sails from here Saturday for Manila to take up his duties as Governor General of the Philippines, will have an opportunity to view the Shanghai war zone.

The President Taft, his vessel, will arrive in the Chinese port February 23 and spend a full day there. She will go to Shanghai via the Japanese ports of Yokohama and Kobe. Col. Roosevelt and his party of six will have nine rooms on the Taft.

FRANCE URGES WORLD POLICE AT GENEVA

Tardieu Takes Arms Parley By Surprise by Outlining Nation's Views on Cut

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Concrete proposals for establishment of an international police force to guarantee the security of the world were presented formally to the world disarmament conference today by Andre Tardieu, French minister of war and head of his country's delegation to the conference.

Although today's meeting was originally called solely for the election of officers, President Arthur Henderson did not stand on technicalities. He accepted deposition of the French document as "in order" although general debate was not scheduled before the conference until next week.

The French declaration, presented with a sudden gesture which took the assembled delegates by surprise, dealt at great length with technical details of armaments and national defense.

M. Tardieu particularly outlined France's wishes with regard to reduction of airplanes, tanks, big guns and other instruments of aggressive warfare.

It was at the end of the day's brief session that Tardieu sprang his surprise by asking for the floor for a brief declaration. He began:

"The bureau of the conference having been constituted I have the honor on behalf of the French delegation to place on the table of the conference a concrete and constructive proposal of the French government bearing on disarmament."

After the French plan had been presented today's plenary session adjourned at 5:05 p. m.

KOO HERE BACKS TOKIO BOYCOTT

United States and other foreign powers assembling ships and troops in the Shanghai sector were likened to firing at a gunpowder plant that can explode into another World War by Dr. T. Z. Koo, international Chinese leader, who today advocated a world boycott of Japanese goods as the only means of stopping the present dispute. He spoke today at a special meeting of the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Japan will give no heed to notes, Dr. Koo said, and two points of all peace suggestions will be rebuffed. Tokio is determined to treat the question of Manchuria as separate from the Shanghai situation, he asserted, since joining the questions will place Japan in a weak position. The second point will be the constant refusal to permit any nation a voice in the settlement of the Manchurian controversy, claiming it is a Sino-Japanese matter alone, he said.

Explaining the cause of the disorder and China's stand, Dr. Koo said:

"The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods is ostensibly the underlying cause of trouble. The objective is to force chaos in China so there will be no central government. The economic pressure caused by the boycott is China's strongest weapon and there is no intention on the part of our country to declare war."

JAPAN BLAMES COMMUNISTS

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—The situation at Shanghai is a direct manifestation of the growing strength of Communism in China, Premier Inukai declared in an official statement late tonight.

Reiterating that Japan had no intention of taking Shanghai from China, the Japanese premier declared that armed activities there were necessary for the protection of the lives and property of Japanese nationals.

So far as Manchuria is concerned, he said, Japan cannot escape the criticism of being tyrannical, although maintenance of peace is the thought uppermost in the government's mind. Japan, he added, is faced with a "serious national crisis."

FATHER COX CHARGES POLITICS, WEALTH CONTROL LEGION

GAVE UP BONUS FOR HOOVER, PRIEST SAYS

Thankful That Mellon Quit Treasury, Jobless Leader Tells Hazelwood Crowd

Speaking before more than 4,000 residents of Hazelwood, the Rev. James R. Cox last night charged that the American Legion had been "sold out" in the interests of national politics and financial interests. He spoke in the Gladstone School at a meeting held under the auspices of the Independent Republicans of the Fifteenth Ward.

Father Cox said:

"National politics and financial interests got the American Legion to sell out. Hoover went to Detroit and had them say they wanted beer instead of a bonus. And he asked them to do this because Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had said there was not enough money for a bonus. I am wrong when I call Mellon Secretary of the Treasury. He is former Secretary. He is going to England, they tell me. Thank God.

WON'T QUIT FIGHT

"People ask me why I don't stay on the pulpit and quit messing into business and political affairs. I am, and always will be, a shepherd of a flock. And when I see my flock slowly being devoured by the wolves of Wall street I fight them. I am not a politician. If I was I would keep my mouth shut and go along quietly.

"Look at our own city. In Pittsburgh the public utilities have property whose valuation is $275,000,000 and it's all exonerated from taxes. Even with the exoneration they still keep up their rates. Yet our local officials do nothing.

"We should have more Mayors like Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown. The day after he was inaugurated he left his job to go on the jobless march to Washington. Imagine some of the big city Mayors doing that."

DENOUNCES HOOVER

Father Cox, speaking of the interview he had with President Hoover while in Washington, said:

"I cannot understand our President. He told me the job of the federal government was to get the people back to their old jobs, not create new ones. And he knows the old jobs are gone forever. I told him of our request for the $5,000,000,000 federal loan and he replied that the federal government at present was doing more than its share.

"President Hoover is not a representative of the people. He only represents that group of millionaires that are slowly forcing the little businessman out of existence. I don't care who likes this or who doesn't. It is up to us to get the representatives of the millionaires out of power, and the sooner we do it the better."

Edward J. Gessner presided at the meeting. Other speakers were Alderman Jacob Yeager, of the Nineteenth Ward; Attorney Ralph Frank and Edward J. Wuerthele, president of the organization holding the meeting.

Manhandled?

PAULINE URRICH

Miss Pauline, "not quite 16," pictured before McKeesport's Magistrate Calhoun today in the hearing of seven alleged Communists arrested in a demonstration yesterday. She said police manhandled her, used language she wouldn't repeat. It was her attempt to speak, police said, that started trouble.

48 FINED AFTER REDS RIOT

Forty-eight alleged Communists, accused of taking part in attempted demonstrations in the Hill district and in McKeesport yesterday, were fined today and most of them, apparently without money, went to jail.

Forty-one, arrested at Fullerton street and Webster avenue, were fined $10 or 10 days in Center Avenue Police Court. Police testified the prisoners had a permit for a meeting but not for a parade. The only woman arrested, Anna Brown, 24, of Columbus avenue, North Side, denied being a Communist and said she was simply a spectator.

In McKeesport, Pauline Urrich, 15, of Susquehanna street, Pittsburgh, whose attempted speech started the riot in which police scattered a crowd of several thousand with tear gas bombs, was one of six fined $50. Her mother, Mrs. Petrishia Urrich, 40, forfeited $50 by failing to appear.

Later an information charging inciting to riot was made against Miss Urrich by Police Chief Whalen before Alderman Robert C. Calhoun, that she might be committed to Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Mary Pluko, 30, of Bryn Mawr, was the only one discharged.

BATTLE OPENED TO SAVE ALLEN FROM CHAIR

Prosecution Rests in Trial Of Youth Charged With Killing Sister's Suitor

BULLETIN.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Eddie Allen took the witness stand this afternoon to defend himself in his trial, charged with the murder of Francis A. Donaldson III.

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 5.—The state's case against Edward H. B. Allen, charged with the murder of his sister's sweetheart, was completed today and the defense immediately took up its fight to save the young society man from the electric chair.

The commonwealth rested after three full days of taking testimony to show that the hollow-eyed youth fired a shotgun blast into the heart of Francis A. Donaldson III, the Main Line man-about-town, with whom 18-year-old Rose Allen was in love.

District Attorney Nase closed his case without calling several of his witnesses and William T. Connor, defense counsel, at once began the case for the boy. He proclaimed:

"It is the right of any individual in the defense of his life and to save himself from bodily harm to take whatever measures he deems necessary.

"The defense will show you that young Eddie Allen was actuated by a deep regard for his aged father and his sister.

"Rose was a sweet, respectful daughter—then Donaldson came and Rose was a different girl overnight."

Eddie told Rose his father, Horace Allen, had told him Donaldson had pushed the elder Allen from Rose's room one night at 2 a. m., according to Connor.

But Rose told Eddie that Donaldson would make her brother "look sick" if he tried to keep Donaldson out of the Allen house. It was then that Eddie made his boyishly bombastic threat—the threat Rose Allen told about from the witness stand—to "blow off" Donaldson's head, Connor explained.

TAMMANY HEAD DIES AT 102

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—John R. Voorhis, 102-year-old Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, died today at his home.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Voorhis had continued his work as president of the City Board of Elections until October 20 of last year, when he was retired by the Board of Estimate at his full salary of $8,000 a year. He made his request for retirement on October 8, the Legislature last September having enacted a law permitting his retirement on full salary for life.

He celebrated his last birthday anniversary on last July 27 by making a radio broadcast. On that occasion his physician attributed Voorhis' ripe age to clean and moderate living.

The trapper had slain one constable of the "mounted" and wounded another. Bombs are to be dropped in his stronghold from the plane.

COURT PAROLES 'YOUNG EPPY'

Young Eppy lost a bet to the government today. The former prizefighter and man about town pleaded guilty in Federal Court to evading income tax for 1925 on the handsome income of $52,000.

Judge R. M. Gibson paroled Eppy, officially known as Henry H. Epstein, for 18 months, on condition that he pay the tax due, $5,679, within one year—$1,500 immediately and the rest in 12 months.

But Eppy will pay more than that. Assistant United States Attorney John A. McCann brought out that Eppy owed taxes for still another year, making his debt to the government $21,654.

The defendant's character witnesses included the Rev. Joseph Halpert, H. E. Fahnestock, Harry Keck, Richard Guy, Dr. James Marks, of Carnegie Tech, by letter, and Eppy's father, Max Epstein.

Others described him as "a square shooter" and "never a double-crosser."

HARBIN: TODAY IT FELL

NEW TAXI LINES HERE BANNED

The Public Service Commission today rejected the application of two taxicab companies seeking permission to operate in Pittsburgh.

In an opinion issued at Harrisburg today, several hours after the New York offices of the Parmelee Transportation Company, operators of Green and Yellow cabs here, had been advised of context, the commission revealed its rejection of the applications of the Hiland Taxicab Company and the Peoples Royal Blue Taxicab Company. The opinion read:

"Approval would result in the total destruction of organized taxicab service in the City of Pittsburgh."

Counsel for both the Hiland and Peoples companies contended that only one more company was needed to serve the present demand; attorneys for the Parmelee organization claimed that there are not sufficient taxi patrons to keep all of their cars in use.

A third application, that of the City Cab Corporation, which has announced it would cut existing taxi rates 50 per cent if granted permission to operate, still is before the commission.

POPE TIGHTENS RULE ON MIXED MARRIAGES

Church to Outlaw Unions Where Parents Fail to Raise Children Catholics

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Marriage between Catholics and non-Catholics hereafter will be considered illegal by the church unless the children actually are educated as Catholics, a new and stricter ruling issued today by the congregation of Sacred Office declares.

The ruling, tightening mixed marriage restrictions, was issued because of a belief that parties to such marriages often have disregarded promises that the children should be reared as Catholics.

The congregation decided that henceforth those who obtain the dispensation of the church for mixed marriage must take those promises seriously and that the church no longer will accept the plea that the laws of the countries where such persons reside prevent proper Catholic education of the children.

If necessary, the congregation decided, such persons must refrain from going to countries where they would be unable to keep their pledges to the church.

In case of any failure to educate the children as Catholics, the church will regard such marriages as illegal.

It was announced that if the parents in a mixed marriage fail to educate their children as Catholics the dispensation granted for the marriage becomes "null and invalid."

Such action would make the marriage illegal so far as the church is concerned and was regarded as amounting to annulment of the marriage.

Throughout several hours of questioning Hicks steadfastly and vehemently denied any knowledge of the killing. He said he knew the McDonnell family.

Hicks was arrested, however, after telling police he had seen Florence walking along the street late Wednesday afternoon.

GALE FOLLOWED HERE BY RISE IN RIVER

23-Foot Stage Predicted In Monongahela Due to Torrents in West Virginia

The Monongahela River was a swirling, rapidly rising torrent today as a result of heavy rains over the West Virginia mountains yesterday.

Autoists with cars parked on the Monongahela wharf were notified by police to remove them to prevent being caught in the upward rush of waters.

Shipping at Lock No. 4 was at a standstill because of the high river stage.

The stage at the Point was 19 feet at 8 a. m., with prospect that it would go to 23 feet, two feet below flood mark, by 6 p. m. today, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

At Greensboro, Greene County, the Monongahela rose 18.8 feet in less than 24 hours, carrying it nearly six feet above flood stage and inundating lowlands.

Warmer weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow, following today's cold snap that sent the mercury to 23 this morning. The cold swept in late yesterday on the heels of a 40-mile gale which caused considerable damage, and slightly injuring three persons.

Six Dead as First Snow Hits Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—With six deaths and numerous injuries attributed to Chicago's first heavy snowfall of the winter, mounting temperatures today gave promise of warm, clear weather over the week-end.

W. P. Day, government weather observer, promised fair and warmer weather for today and tomorrow, with little prospect of more snow.

Dreyfuss Family Expected To Retain Control of Club With Benswanger at Head

The death of Barney Dreyfuss, principal owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is not expected to take the controlling interest of the team out of the Dreyfuss family, it was indicated today by men close to the departed magnate.

A feeling existed that William E. Benswanger, Dreyfuss son-in-law and the present treasurer of the club, might be the new president, with Samuel E. Watters present secretary, also moving up in the ownership and directorship of the organization. Watters owns a block of the stock.

SALE UNLIKELY

That the club will not be sold was the inference given. A preponderance of the stock of the team, which is listed as a part of the Pittsburgh Athletic Company, was owned by Dreyfuss. The costly Forbes Field property as well as the National League franchise of this city are included in the operating company.

Dreyfuss was the president of the company, the other officers being William E. Benswanger, treasurer, and Samuel E. Watters, secretary. There has been no vice president since the death of Samuel W. Dreyfuss.

HARRIS DIRECTOR

The directors of the company are Barney Dreyfuss, William E. Benswanger, Samuel E. Watters, Senator Frank J. Harris, Louis Banberger, of New York, and Dr. Bertram Bernheim, of Baltimore. The latter is a nephew of Mr. Dreyfuss.

The Pirate holdings, including the franchise, was represented several years ago as having a total value of approximately $3,000,000.

during 1931 that the federal Treasury will suffer an embarrassing loss of income from this source.

What can be done about it?

WHEN William Randolph Hearst — with greater foresight than the writer could muster — first began to advocate the introduction of a sales tax, I could not conscientiously take part in the campaign. And, of course, did not.

But subsequent events, especially recent events, and still more especially what looms ahead, have opened my eyes to the urgent necessity for establishing taxation on the broadest possible basis.

In my humble opinion, a sales tax drawn up with due care by legislators or others who have first familiarized themselves with Canada's sales tax and Canada's experiences, would be infinitely preferable to the bewildering variety of Washington proposals for singling out this, that and the next industry and product for subjection to all kinds of crippling levies.

EVEN SHOULD the government — wisely — refrain from compelling business and individuals to meet avoidable burdens at this time when business and individuals have burdens enough of their own, the need for public revenue will be so large that at least a modest contribution should be levied upon the greatest possible number of those who enjoy the government's protection.

Is there any other method by which this objective could be as painlessly attained as by a scientifically-prepared sales tax?

PET DOG SAVES 7 FROM FIRE

The family of Joseph Pulvick, of Normantown, East Deer Township, including five small children, was rescued from the second floor of their burning home early today after the barking of a pet dog awakened a neighbor, who aroused the sleeping family.

Joseph Flover, a neighbor, found the first floor of the Pulvick home in flames. Arousing the family by throwing a rock through a window, he raised a ladder, down which the family fled.

Loss to the two-story frame dwelling was estimated at $2,500.

Dreyfuss' Rise to Fame, Wealth Rivals Fiction

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The true story of Barney Dreyfuss, German-Jewish immigrant boy, is nothing less than a gripping American romance, a romance more startling than fiction and one that is possible only in the greatest country in the world, the land of freedom and opportunity.

The man destined to become one of the greatest characters in baseball was born in Freiburg, Baden, Germany, February 23, 1865, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dreyfuss, the father being an American citizen then resident of Germany. The baby boy was named Bernard Dreyfuss, but when the son came to this country he had his given name legally changed to "Barney."

As a boy, the younger Dreyfuss was educated in the schools of his birthplace, but he secured employment in a bank at Karlsruhe when he was only 16. One year later he came to the United States and almost immediately took up his home in Paducah, Ky. The Kentucky town was the home of Barney's sister, Mrs. Bernheim. The Bernheims were a well-known family of that part of the Blue Grass state, it having distillery interests in Paducah.

The immigrant boy was able to obtain employment in the Bernheim distillery, his tasks being of the menial sort and for which he collected a weekly wage of $6. But his modest pay did not prevent young Dreyfuss from saving a certain amount each week "against a rainy day."

HEALTH ENDANGERED

Although frail of physique, the lad was so ambitious that he worked himself into a bookkeeping job with the firm. His habits always were fine. Barney did not indulge in the tobacco habit as a boy and he refrained from using it as a man. Speaking of this at a later date he remarked:

"When I wanted to, I couldn't afford it; when I could afford it I did not want to."

After his promotion, Barney worked so hard as to gravely endanger his health. In order to master his tasks well he would labor into the night. Eventually he was warned, being ordered to take up outdoor exercise.

It was with the idea of benefiting his health then that Barney Dreyfuss jumped into baseball. Apparently he had developed a fondness for the game of his adopted country and as early as 1884 we find him organizing a semi-pro club in Paducah. And the lad, fresh from Germany, was the team's second baseman.

A real high spot in the early career of the Paducah club was evidenced when it went all the way to Memphis to battle a team managed by Ted Sullivan, departed baseball luminary, who in 1914 toured the world with the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox.

Dreyfuss' first baseball venture, it seems, was an artistic success, for Paducah won by a big score, but he often has related that the trip did not pan out so well financially.

WORKED ON RIVER PACKET

And so we find Barney's life in Paducah a most pleasant existence; indeed his fortunes at that young period of his career had the rich flavor of river lore, for young Dreyfuss was something akin to a cabin boy on packets that made long trips up and down the Tennessee River.

An important milestone in the life of the young man is noted when Dreyfuss was about 23. At this time the Bernheim interests moved to Louisville and Barney went along with the plant as credit manager. Closer than ever to baseball and with an even warmer devotion for it, Barney, in 1890, was able to buy a small block of stock in the Louisville Club of the American Association. Moreover, he became treasurer of the club.

In 1891, with the American Association disbanding, the Colonels had a chance to get into the 12-club National League. The up and coming young Dreyfuss appreciated the opportunity and he played a big part in getting Louisville into the big league. Harry Clay Pulliam, who later became president of the National League, was president of the Colonels, and in 1896 we find young Dreyfuss elevated to the post of secretary-treasurer. Barney later was to aid in placing Pulliman at the head of the National circuit.

INVITED TO PITTSBURGH

The events of 1899 had the effect of turning Dreyfuss' course toward Pittsburgh and his greatest achievements. Fire destroyed the Louisville baseball plant in that year and the National League decided to cut its circuit to eight clubs. In the reducing process, Cleveland, Washington, Baltimore and Louisville lost their franchise. At this point the great opportunity presented itself to Dreyfuss.

Capt. W. W. Kerr, and the others at the head of the unsuccessful Pittsburgh club were eager to dispose of their holdings. The locals had been a perennial second-division outfit and naturally a poor attraction.

Col. O. S. Hershman, a prominent Pittsburgher, sent for Dreyfuss. Barney came to town and soon was engaged in negotiations that resulted in the merging of the Pittsburgh and Louisville teams, with Dreyfuss coming out of the transactions as the head man. Barney was the president of the new Pirates, a club that quickly rose to great heights in baseball.

Most of you know the rest concerning Fred Clarke's fighting team. With Barney and Fred came the incomparable Honus Wagner, Claude Ritchey, Tom McCreery, Rube Waddell, Pat Flaherty, Tommy Leach, Deacon Phillippe, Chief Zimmer, et al.

Awaiting the Kentucky Colonels in Pittsburgh were Jess Tannehill, Sam Leever, Jimmy Williams, Fred Ely, Bill Shriver, Tom O'Brien, Clarence Beaumont and others.

THREE FLAGS IN ROW

Out of the two outfits, Clarke, the dashing Kansan, moulded a club which compares favorably with the greatest teams in the throbbing history of the diamond sport. Clarke's colorful fighters were good enough to win three pennants in a row, after grabbing off the runnerup berth as they got set in their first season.

Meantime, the smart owner of the Pittsburgh club had been busy steering his favorite league and baseball in general over some sharp rocks. The American League entered the scene in 1900 with the aggressive Ban Johnson riding high, wide and handsome.

The advent of Johnson and his circuit marks the most hostile period of the professional diamond sport. Agents of the new league offered princely sums to players who would jump contracts and the lure of the wealth proved too much for many stars, including some of the Pirates.

Through all the fierce fighting, Manager Clarke, Wagner and a few other topliners put loyalty before cash and the Pirate owner was able to keep his club almost intact. The several stars who did "jump" apparently failed to slow up Clarke's fine team, which won its three flags during the early days of the junior circuit.

Peace was completely restored by 1903. Plans for the formation of the famous National Commission were under way, but in the meantime, the Pirates and Boston Red Sox, winners of the pennant in the National and American Leagues, moved to stage the first world series.

With many other rival magnates still unwilling to forgive and forget, Barney Dreyfuss and Henry J. Killelea, head of the Boston Americans, met in Chicago where they arranged the only world series not played under official jurisdiction.

STIRRING SERIES

Old-time followers of the Pirates will never forget that titular play. The Red Sox won at the finish, but only after a stirring series which brought Deacon Phillippe into the limelight as one of the most endurable of pitchers.

Clarke led his Pirates to another pennant in 1909 and this time the Pittsburghers, brought the game's biggest title to the city as they defeated the Detroit Tigers, champions of the American League.

Dreyfuss' surcease from baseball troubles was of long duration, once the peace was established. But something like a dozen years later the Federal League and the Sisler case hit him hard. The two major circuits had a stirring battle with the new "outlaws" before organized baseball finally won, and in the midst of this scrapping, Dreyfuss felt the sting of the Sisler decision.

Barney blamed the loss of Sisler on Garry Herrmann and Ban Johnson, two cronies who were members of the National Commission. When they awarded the star collegian to the St. Louis Browns, Dreyfuss told both they would rue the day, and from that time he opened his guns on the pair. Years were required for Barney to get the famous duo "on the spot," but he finally did that and his stage was in Chicago, which later was to become more infamous for putting gents "on the spot."

Dreyfuss demanded a new form of government to take the place of the National Commission. He insisted on an impartial dictator and was credited with having been among the first to bring Judge Landis' name into the picture. Well, it was a great triumph for Barney in 1921 when the magnates abolished the commission and in its place set up Judge Landis as the czar of the sport. The judge is at the head of the Advisory Council which rules the game.

And through the years Dreyfuss' colorful teams have been of championship caliber. The Buccos won the flag and world series title in 1925 and the Freebooters copped another pennant in 1927.

DEATH TAKES ONLY SON

Dreyfuss' home was thrown into deep sorrow in February of last year when death took his only son, Samuel W. Dreyfuss, Vice president and treasurer of the Pirates, the younger Dreyfuss had proved himself a brilliant baseball man. Only 34, his counsel was sought by many magnates and owners. The shock to the son's parents was forceful.

George Gibson, star catcher of the Pittsburgh Club for many years and who later managed the team, was reappointed pilot to succeed Jewel Ens, about two months ago. Since the resignation of Clarke in 1915, the club has been managed by Jimmy Callahan, Hugo Bezdek, Gibson, Bill McKechnie and Ens.

A few days before the date of the December meeting Dreyfuss complained of illness. His local physician advised him to go to Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, for an examination. The examination revealed that a serious operation was necessary to correct glandular and bladder troubles. Two operations were performed in an effort to correct the ailments.

The firemen arrived in time to carry the hysterical young women to the street. It was found none was hurt seriously, though about 20 had minor scratches.

COUNTY AIRPORT BOARD RULE FAVORED

Aviation Interests Uphold Aero Club's Proposals, Oppose Private Control

Formation of an airport advisory board as recommended by the Aero Club of Pittsburgh to take an active part in management affairs at the new Allegheny County $5,000,000 airport was looked upon with favor among many of the district aviation interests today.

The board, functioning without remuneration according to the Aero Club, would perform practically the same duties as the Pittsburgh District Traffic Board which co-ordinates the problems and views of the municipalities served by the street railways system, using the public highways in competition to the various means of public transportation.

MANAGEMENT PLAN

The Aero Club proposes that the board be so constituted as to give everybody concerned a voice in managerial affairs. The suggestion is made that the board consist of representatives of the Board of County Commissioners, City Council, Chamber of Commerce, Real Estate Board of Pittsburgh, Aero Club, commercial aircraft operators and government agencies involved.

The club, at its weekly membership meeting yesterday in William Penn Hotel, expressed itself opposed to private leasing of the field as a whole to any individual or corporation at this time.

This question, brought up at the club meeting a week ago, brought a protest from individual members, who urged that the club act as an organization. Members opposing the proposed intention of the Board of County Commissioners again voiced their disapproval of such action, one of the members declaring it would be as "ridiculous" to lease the airport as it would Smithfield street or the Liberty Tubes.

CLUB'S PROPOSALS

The recommendations of the club were adopted unanimously, but an amendment seeking to condense the resolution by withdrawing a plan of management met with defeat by a small margin.

The plan of management suggested in the recommendations of the club consisted of flight and traffic supervision under operations manager reporting to the airport director, and schedule of reasonable charges for use of the airport by various classes of aircraft.

An orderly and logical assignment of sites on and about the airport for use for co-ordinated commercial and industrial purposes, providing space for two or more leases in each type of business.

Leases to be made to the highest responsible bidder after advertisement, with 50 per cent of rental secured by bond or collateral, and with leases terminable at the option of the county for material and persistent breach of rules and regulations.

LEASE REGULATIONS

Leases to be for one to five years, depending upon the mobility and mount of the investment required.

Lessees not be protected against competition at the airport nor to be indemnified against losses.

Leases to require lessees in their respective business, to render efficient and prompt service at reasonable charges, to accord impartial treatment to the public using the airport, and generally to cooperate with the county and other lessees in the safe and harmonious operation of the airport and its coordinated facilities.

40 GROUPS WAR ON HOARDING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Heads of 40 national organizations, ranging from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to the railroad labor brotherhoods, have been enlisted by President Hoover in his war on hoarding of badly-needed dollars.

The executives of virtually every unit capable of reaching large numbers of people have been summoned and are expected to attend the President's Saturday conference. Mr. Hoover will address the groups and so will Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Corporation.

It was indicated the Federal Reserve structure would play a part in the set-up of a regional organization for the reconstruction group. Its executives are now perfecting procedure and completing the personnel.

Dissenting notes to the anti-hoarding campaign came yesterday from two quarters. Representative LaGuardia (Rep.) of New York, wanted to know if the Reconstruction Corporation would guarantee deposits in the "sound institutions" in which the President urged hoarded money be deposited.

$4,000 Coat 'Bank' Stolen From Worker

Detectives and police today were seeking the robbers who escaped with the coat of George Spudick, 45, employe of the Chalfant Company, which contained $4,000 that had been sewed in a pocket.

Spudick told police that he did not believe in banks and that he had sewed the money in his coat for safety. Spudick said he had placed the coat in a locker in the company plant and that when he went to take some money from the pocket he found the coat missing. He said he had saved the money to return to Germany.

SEEK BODIES IN QUAKE RUINS

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Volunteer workers joined 300 employes of the Cuban Department of Public Works probing piles of wreckage today to establish definitely the number of dead from the earthquakes that wrenched the town Tuesday morning.

The official death list was raised today to 13 and Col. Luis del Rosal, military chief of Oriente Province, expressed the belief that many more bodies might be found under the wreckage.

Supplies, medicines and shelter equipment were on the way to Santiago today in response to the request of municipal officials.

Treatment of injured persons continued. Physicians said they needed additional quantities of anti-tetanic serum.

Slight earth shocks that occurred yesterday alarmed officials in charge of rehabilitation work, but apparently did little to add to the almost complete wreckage of the city.

BRITISH TARIFF BILL HURRIED

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Great Britain's new protective tariff bill was well on its way to becoming a law today.

The bill, abandoning the country's old free trade policy, is expected to be passed by the House of Commons a week from today, receive other necessary stamps of approval, and become effective March 1. Under it there will be a 10 per cent ad valorem tariff on nearly all imports.

Fifty-five per cent of American imports will be hit under the law, representing an annual business of $767,485,000 with the pound sterling at par.

The dominions will be free from the new duties at least until the Ottawa imperial conference in July, and, if some agreement for empire free trade is reached then, may not be hit at all.

COUNTY BUDGET CLOSES WITH DEFICIT

Salary Slashes to Be Made By Board; Switching of Funds Avoids Borrowing

With a $736,000 deficit to overcome during the year by executive action, the County Commissioners have authorized the Controller to close the 1932 budget without any change in the 1931 salary set-ups.

The executive action will consist of taking up the various departments under their supervision and making salary cuts and job eliminations that will amount to a 15 per cent cut all along the line in their $4,194,723.74 payroll.

If the other elective officials of the county, whose payrolls total $2,395,859, would agree to go along with the Commissioners in their proposed "standardization" program, a general 10 per cent reduction would make up the $561,560.98 deficit in the general county fund.

As many salaries are fixed by law, the assumption is that drastic cutting in many cases will be necessary to make the budgeted income fit the expenditures.

The road tax fund shows a $409,105.83 deficit. This, the Commissioners explained at the meeting yesterday, will be made up by transfer of $700,000 from the road bond account, which can be used in making permanent improvements to county roads. And it is from this switching of funds that the Commissioners will provide the $500,000 setup for employment of men recommended to them by the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association.

To avoid borrowing money from the banks for this month's payrolls the Commissioners also authorized transfer of $100,000 from the Jail Extension bond fund and $200,000 from the Allegheny River boulevard bond fund as temporary loans until after collection of taxes begins this year.

As soon as the Controller balances the budget it will be signed by the Commissioners and appropriations will be released for use. Because their budget making had not been completed the Commissioners have been making purchases for all county departments by emergency appropriations since they took office.

Mr. Lissfelt

Last night in Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh finally awakened to the fact that Vladimir Horowitz is one of the great pianists of the present. He has appeared here twice before and both times played better than last night. His best is superb.

Whoever substituted the Bach Toccata for the Beethoven Variations, as originally announced, made a grave error; whoever cancelled the Prokofieff Sonata and forced us to listen to that silly etude of Liszt, did Pittsburgh a great injustice, for in that sonata we might have heard excellent contemporary music and music that pleases, as well. The Brahms valses and variations are too little known and the "Petrouchka" scenes are decidedly not the last word from Stravinsky.

But Horowitz is a leading figure among pianists. Possibly the most brilliant of players, a man of electric force whose art is built on intellect. His approach to the classics is masterful; among the romantics his poetry is lost in a maze of technique; among the moderns he goes the composer one better, and with his endless variety of tonal dynamics paints their scores more brilliantly than they had ever hoped.

With the exception of dull preambling and a few hammered chords, the Bach remained sonorous and clear. The Hummel Rondo has lain dead for a long while, and I am not at all convinced that its revival is important. Horowitz chose the best of Opus 39 when he played the Brahms Valses, most of them overplayed. From the two books of Paganini Variations he selected well and ordered them nicely for sake of contrasts. In these he showed his wares as never before.

Whether any pianist can make Chopin's Barcarolle more than indifferently pleasing is an eternal question. Alongside so charming a Mazurka and so exhilarating an Etude it surely remains a mediocre composition. Any of that audience who had seen the Ballet Russe dance these "Petrouchka" scenes must have been grateful to Horowitz for reviving these colorful and scintillating sketches. His effects were almost orchestral, always gay and broadly humorous.

How easily a pianist can distort a delicate miniature was evident when Horowitz, among his encores, sacrificed Chopin's D Flat Valse and lost its pattern entirely. Another Mazurka of Chopin, Horowitz's own paraphrase on "Carmen" themes, and the Liadow "Musical Snuff-box" partially satisfied the enthusiastic public.

HOOVER BREAK WITH MELLON APPARENT

President Willingly Sends Pittsburgher to London; Relations Never Cordial

could have stepped without loss of prestige.

MELLON DISSATISFIED

Mr. Mellon was determined upon resignation under any conditions, at this time, his determination greater because in the past few days there had occurred the culmination of a chain of intrigue and attack, from within and without the administration which he has found growingly distasteful. Moreover, he was increasingly aware of the manner in which the President was depending upon Ogden Mills, of New York, under secretary of the Treasury, who has become his successor.

He could perceive that while Mr. Hoover would not openly indicate resignation, it would be gladly received at the White House providing no political disadvantages were incurred.

To friends who have visited him in Washington recently, Mr. Mellon has plainly spoken his distaste for his surroundings in the capital. The "father-and-son" legend which has grown up about the venerable Secretary and his younger first assistant was largely fiction. Many persons believed when Hoover reappointed Mellon to the cabinet that he was merely a "stop-gap" to appease financial interests which had supported the Californian in the 1928 campaign.

MILLS AGGRESSIVE

Among those so believing it is reported, was Mills, an aggressive, pushing personality, who had retired from Congress to enter the Treasury Department. Mills is understood to have become restive as time ran on and Mellon continued at the head of national fiscal affairs. This attitude is understood to have come to Mellon's attention, and he was aware that as between himself and Mills the White House was disposed to lean upon the New Yorker.

Mr. Mellon tired of a role little more than a figure-head, particularly as he was forced as titular chief of the Treasury, to bear the brunt of all attacks. The impeachment proceedings instigated by Representative Patman, of Texas, are understood to have disturbed the Secretary, and are known to have disturbed the President, who was perturbed at the effects on his candidacy, already burdened with as many political loads as it could bear.

In defense Mr. Mellon was represented by a young lawyer before the House Committee hearing the charges.

LOANS AND CONCESSIONS

Then came the investigation by Senator Johnson of foreign loans, especially to South American countries, with implication that concessions for American industry had exerted a great influence in the making of these loans, and that the State Department had appeared to have a hand in the negotiations between bankers and South American republics.

It was during these hearings that Johnson charged a South American loan, once refused by New York bankers, had been extended shortly after the Gulf Oil Company had been granted a fabulously valuable concession. The coincidence of the dates, together with an allegation that the State Department had at least indirectly participated in the negotiations, was the subject of considerable debate in Washington.

Again Mr. Mellon was represented at hearings by a young attorney, remaining silent himself.

A week ago Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, in a radio address charged that some "people in high places in this country appear to have betrayed their trust."

Then Mr. Mellon for the first time in the recent controversies made a personal statement denying that he had known anything about oil concessions or the granting of loans to a South American country at about the same time.

HOOVER SPIRIT COOLS

It was at this time that Mr. Hoover became really perturbed, according to reliable information. He was fearful of a prolongation of the controversy, particularly after the speech of Senator Capper, one of his strongest supporters.

Mr. Mellon suggested resignation.

If he expected to find the President inclined to brush these related incidents aside, to express with warm sympathy the idea that the Secretary should ignore all attacks, Mr. Mellon was sadly disappointed.

He found Mr. Hoover enthusiastically receptive to the departure of the Pittsburgher from the Treasury, but hesitant at anything which would baldly show the country that a complete break had occurred in his administration, with the veteran of three cabinets and a tradition in conservative Republican political circles stepping abruptly back to private life.

Mr. Hoover urged the British diplomatic post as a graceful exit. Mr. Mellon demurred, saying that his health would suffer in the English climate. Mr. Hoover pressed the question and finally won an assent. Then announcement was made in Washington of the resignation and proffer of the ambassadorship, the announcement being made by Mr. Mellon himself.

The episode has created a tremendous stir in Pittsburgh among Mr. Mellon's associates in finance and will have widespread repercussions in Pennsylvania politics. It is positively known that many financial leaders here affiliated with Mellon enterprises feel that the former Secretary has been shabbily treated by the President. They are highly resentful, and political sentiment in this group, never warm toward Mr. Hoover, has cooled perceptibly in the past two days.

Mrs. Hoover Wears Cotton Frock at Reception

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—In a cotton frock, modeled after the fashions of the 70's, Mrs. Hoover stood beside the President last night in the next-to-last reception of the official White House season.

It was a white dimity, printed with a blue figure, copied from a dress her mother wore. The quaint costume had a fitted bodice, with a V-cut neck, flowing skirt with ruffles, and black velvet scallops.

In the receiving line at the head of the Cabinet was Secretary Mellon, perhaps for the last time. The reception was for officials of all the civil departments of the government. The Army and Navy will be received next Monday.

NO OPPOSITION TO MELLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved the nomination of Andrew W. Mellon to be Ambassador to Great Britain today within an hour after President Hoover forwarded the name to the Senate.

The committee out of deference to the veteran Secretary of the Treasury held a special meeting to report his name.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, immediately brought the nomination back to the Senate and confirmation of Mr. Mellon as Ambassador to the Court of St. James was expected before nightfall.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The British government gave its formal approval late this afternoon to the appointment of Andrew W. Mellon as United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, succeeding Gen. Charles G. Dawes.

Mellon Protege Seen As Mills' Assistant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(INS)—Alexander S. Gregg, one of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's earlier proteges in the department, probably will be appointed an assistant secretary in the new Treasury lineup, it was reported here today.

M'BRIDE SCORES DAVIS IN VARE 'SURRENDER'

Anti-Saloon League Head Charges Senator's Stand On Dry Law's 'Betrayal'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Praised by the antis and condemned by the drys, Senator James J. Davis today found himself deluged with messages from Pennsylvania giving the state's reaction to his announcement of Wednesday that he will be a candidate to succeed himself on a prohibition repeal platform.

While such messages are coming in from all sections of the state they have not been sufficient thus far to determine the preponderance of sentiment for or against his stand.

In the meantime the Pennsylvania Senator today was confronted with a blistering attack from F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, which indicated that he will meet serious opposition from this quarter when the primary campaign gets under way.

ATTACKS VARE

The attack of Dr. McBride was aimed no less at Senator Davis than at the Philadelphia organization headed by William S. Vare. Davis was accused of surrendering to "a corrupt, ruthless wet machine," employing "cold-blooded political tactics."

Using such terms as "organized wet political piracy," Dr. McBride said:

"The announcement by Senator Davis implies a conversion to the wet cause, but in reality represents surrender to the arbitrary demands of the ruthless wet Vare machine.

"It is doubtful whether either Senator Davis or the Vare machine will benefit by the course of action they are taking. It is no longer possible to straddle on the prohibition issue, and recent political history has demonstrated that attempts to change from one side to the other invariably lead to defeat.

"The demand by the Vare machine that Senator Davis must support the wet program regardless of any former attitude or personal convictions again illustrates how far the fanatic fringe in the wet camp is willing to go in its attacks upon the Eighteenth Amendment.

"FANATICAL ELEMENT"

"This fanatical element is willing to jeopardize any other national interest or sacrifice any public official who does not agree with its demand for legalized liquor.

"Neither the people of Pennsylvania nor of the United States will stand for such cold-blooded political tactics. If Senator Davis, even with his remarkable record of public service and undoubted popularity, can win in Pennsylvania on a policy of surrender to a corrupt, ruthless wet machine, it will mean the surrender with him of the citizenship of his state to the domination of organized wet political piracy."

Hemphill Fears Generation 'Born In Speakeasies'

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Many wealthy men of the next generation will have been "born in speakeasies" and will give a background "not helpful to the building of the nation," John M. Hemphill, former Democratic gubernatorial candidate, declared today. He told members of a club here:

"Prohibition laws are creating a new form of wealth. And it is falling into the hands of gangsters and other lawless men. Cowardly politicians will be forced to take a stand on the issue in the near future.

"Outstanding leaders in the Democratic party are determined to put a declaration on the liquor issue in the national platform. Prohibition has forced even the boys and girls to turn to hard liquor because beer and light wines are not available. Because of this we are becoming a poisoned people."

Gerard Urges Repeal To End Tax Burden

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The one immediate salvation from the "back-breaking burden of taxation," in the opinion of James W. Gerard, is to do away "with the nonsense of prohibition."

Addressing the Hardware Merchants and manufacturers' Association last night, the former ambassador to Berlin said it would take at least five years for young men and women to "forget the taste of bathtub gin."

SMITH TO STATE HIS POSITION

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The pressure of inquiries from all parts of the country has convinced former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, one of his intimate friends said today, that he should make a clear statement in the near future of whether he will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

New York newspapers reported early this week that the 1928 standard bearer had completed a draft of his long-awaited statement and that its release date was to be decided at a conference of leaders opposed to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, an avowed presidential candidate.

It was indicated it might be made public before the New Hampshire primary early in March, at which supporters of both Smith and Roosevelt will be candidates for membership in the state's delegation to the national convention.

ANTI-DRY PLANK URGED ON G.O.P.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey announced today he would urge the Republican National Convention to adopt an anti-dry plank in its 1932 platform.

Barbour, who succeeded the late Dwight W. Morrow in the Senate, made public his stand in a telegram addressed to Edgar A. Knapp, of Red Bank, N. J., who had asked for his position.

Christening Set For Lyon Infant

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—On the birthday of both her father and her uncle, Barbara Bebe Lyon, 4-month-old daughter of Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels, of the films, will be christened tomorrow at the Hollywood Congregational Church.

Lyon's brother, Edwin, 10 years older to the day than the film actor, will be godfather, and Louella Parsons, movie columnist, will be godmother.

DRYS TO FIGHT DAVIS--TOPE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Organization leaders in Philadelphia generally withheld comment today on Senator James J. Davis' announced candidacy on a wet platform. It was understood, however, that he will have the support of the organization in his forthcoming campaign.

Opposition to Davis' candidacy was voiced in several quarters, however.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, of the Anti-Saloon League, spoke of the efforts made in the last few days to hold Davis in the dry column and predicted the antis will "go into the fight with divided forces." He said:

"The drys are not going to let the election go by default. I don't know who the dry candidate will be, but it is certain that one will be in the field and that he will stand by President Hoover's policy of strict enforcement."

Lucille LaVerne Injured in Crash

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Lucille LaVerne, noted stage star, was injured yesterday by the collision of her motorcar with a boulevard telephone pole. Physicians said she suffered five dislocated vertebrae.

Her chauffeur smashed the machine into the pole in an attempt to avoid hitting another car.

Ban Pen Visitors As Curb on Grip

As a precaution against spread of the grip, authorities at the Western Penitentiary have banned visitors and meetings of the prisoners for several days. About 10 prisoners, suffering from mild attacks of the disease, have been isolated, it was said.

Lovers Once

(From the New York Evening Sun, February 3, 1932)

In the campaign of the "great and solemn referendum" of 1920 no voice was raised more earnestly or frequently for American entrance into the League of Nations than the voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was running for Vice President of the United States.

He and Mr. Cox made the league the big issue of the day. Mr. Roosevelt, then only 38 years old and imbued with the idealism of President Wilson, traveled the country trumpeting the glories of the league and challenging every opponent of Mr. Wilson's internationalistic program.

Nor did Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiasm for the league die with the passing of Mr. Wilson. He became, and we believe still is, a trustee of the Woodrow Wilson foundation, which so recently as 1929 awarded its peace prize to the league in recognition of its 10 years' work in behalf of peace. Indeed, he served as the foundation's national chairman for one term.

Last night Franklin D. Roosevelt, now 50 and the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, laid the league ideal on the ash heap of the past, where it keeps company with the recent renunciation of another presidential candidate, Newton D. Baker. If Gov. Roosevelt's rejection of his old ideal looms larger than that of Mr. Baker, it is because he made it more complete, less tied with strings.

The league, he says, is not the league conceived by Wilson. It has not developed along the lines laid down by its founder. Too often, Mr. Roosevelt finds, it has been merely a meeting place for the "political discussion of strictly European political national difficulties."

We remember no murmur of dissent from Trustee Roosevelt when the Wilson Foundation laid its laurels at the league's foot two years ago. But let that go; the acolyte of other days finds that the league is not what it used to be. We may add, with due reverence to Punch, that it never was.

GARNER PUSHES HOUSE INTO LEADERSHIP

Senate Taking Orders While 'Texas Coolidge' Exhibits Powerful Driving Force

(The following is reprinted from the Kansas City Star of January 29.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The last few weeks have seen an amazing shift of balance on Capitol Hill. Today the House is in the saddle, and the Senate is taking orders.

This has come about partly because of the situation in the Senate itself, partly because of the sudden emergence of a powerful personality in the House, the new speaker, John N. Garner of Texas.

Facing what they believed was a national emergency, the Democratic leaders in Congress organized what they called a policy committee. This was to hold unruly members in line and make the party function as a well-knit instrument of public service. Apparently because of his possession of unexpected qualities of leadership, Speaker Garner emerged as the dominant figure of this committee.

TAMMANY MEN SPURRED

To the surprise of his colleagues, the new Speaker simply hoisted his flag and took charge. With a majority of only five in the House, it was his first duty to keep the members in attendance. He let them know he expected them to be on the job and he did it so effectively that even the Tammany members, who were accustomed to practicing law at home, and only occasionally to visiting Washington are now regular attendants.

But the Speaker showed more than tact and force. A small man with tight lips, they are calling him the "Texas Coolidge." He is displaying many of the Coolidge characteristics of hard sense, a grasp of problems and a passionate thrift.

When the President's great economic program was laid before Congress, Garner was one of those who recognized its soundness and importance. He set to work to line up his party for its essential provisions, and he succeeded. When it showed signs of becoming restive, important men were called in from New York to assure the leaders that the world might blow up in 90 days if strong measures were not adopted to hold the situation in hand.

PROMPT ACTION WON

So Democrats as well as Republicans were convinced, and the country witnessed the astonishing spectacle of the prompt adoption of the moratorium, the Federal Land Bank bill and the measure setting up the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Meanwhile the Speaker notified the various committee chairmen they were expected to cut expenses to the bone. He even went up to the White House to remonstrate with the President against recommendations for appropriations that he regarded as excessive.

Of course his work has been of enormous advantage to the country. But it has been the best politics as well. For Jack Garner is demonstrating to the leaders of the business world that his party is to be trusted. So today this formerly obscure Texan has made himself almost overnight a national figure and one that will bear watching in the Democratic national convention if the Roosevelt plans should go awry.

Gavel That Won't Break Ordered By Garner

ELKHORN, Wis., Feb. 5 (AP).—Speaker Garner's penchant for breaking gavels while presiding over the House of Representatives may soon be checked.

Alfred Olson, an Elkhorn woodworker, announced he has received an order from Garner for a special unbreakable gavel, carved out of black walnut and treated with Olson's "shrunken-wood" process, Olson said.

"I'm told Garner broke three gavels in one week," but I think I can make one that'll hold him."

GOLDSTEIN SUED OVER CRASH

Sol S. Goldstein, alderman of the Fourteenth Ward, who recently recovered from serious injuries in an automobile accident in which his brother and a friend were killed, was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Mrs. Lena Beck of Hobart street, seeking $15,000 damages for the death of her husband, Maurice M. Beck, in the accident.

The accident occurred on the Lincoln Highway at Leman place, near Lancaster, October 7, when the three were returning from the world series games in Philadelphia. The automobile dropped from a bridge approach down an embankment to the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and a train carrying the St. Louis team was detoured to another track by a signalman in time to avoid a crash.

Alderman Goldstein was driving the car, owned by him, and was going at high speed, the suit charged.

SLUMP'S HARM TO MIND AND BODY CITED

Underfeeding of Children Will Cause Future Deaths, Pitt Educator Declares

In spite of a mortality rate that was lower in the past 12 months, at the height of the economic slump, than in 1930, Dr. W. T. Root, member of the State Board of Directors of Western Penitentiary and professor of psychology at the University of Pittsburgh, declares the physical and moral wreckage resulting from the present crisis will be greater than during a normal period.

Dr. Root was shown insurance figures which reveal the death rate for Pennsylvania during the past year as the same as 1930, and a national report to the effect that the 1931 death rate exceeded the previous minimum by only 1 per cent. He commented:

"We might expect that. But consider the effect of malnutrition, always aggravated during a crisis. With malnutrition, the period of morbidity or death runs two or three years behind inception.

FUTURE HARM SEEN

"These countless little children and their parents, who are going hungry now, may not die for two or three years. But their deaths will be attributed to this period.

"And the moral effect of this depression, or any depression which results in futility, can prove worse than that resulting from war. Unemployment is a slow, insidious thing, gradually gnawing away a man's self-respect and overwhelming him with an inferiority complex.

"The habits formed by young men just out of school who are unable to obtain work in these times may, if not changed by activity of the right sort, result in a complete loss of ambition—laziness.

"Laziness is the most incurable thing we have to contend with in our criminal studies. We usually find in a prisoner's record that he is a habitual loafer."

MENTAL EFFECT CITED

In other words, Dr. Root believes, a depression can make and is making loafers out of normal young men, crushing them beneath a stone wall of obstacles between them and a job. He adds:

"The psychological effect of unemployment is enormous. One of the most severe facts in mental hygiene makes its appearance when a young person is thrown out of employment or when he leaves school and fails to get work for month upon month. It is during the years between 16 and 21 that habits of industry are developed."

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

(Copyright, 1932, Walter Winchell, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Well, I had intended to jot down a few notes on the recent proceedings in one of the Central Park Zoos—but the papers scooped me on my own story and left little for me to add. . . . Only one flaw in their reports made mine hosts a little ill. . . . And that was that their party was a "wild party." . . . Well, that's not so. . . . It wasn't a wild party. . . . And, so far as Mrs. Winchell's Walter is concerned, it was the nicest party he ever crashed. . . . I thought I had run the gamut of Broadway emotions—until one of my betters, Mr. Earl Carroll, confronted me before the large assemblage—which included hundreds of acquaintances and a few of my friends. . . . Mr. Carroll, who has had sound cause for rebuke for a decade, encouraged by some exalting-on, delivered himself of a cancer in his heart . . . He laid me out in what L. Holtz describes as "plain fukk!" and then broke down and cried until 5 that morning, when, still weeping over the A. C. Blumenthals' (Peggy Fears') phone connection, he expressed his regrets. . . . To the Blumenthals, that is. . . . Mr. Carroll said that I was not fit to associate with decent people, meaning, of course, decent people like himself.

I have been cussed and insulted before. . . . And by better producers than Mr. Carroll. . . . Several of them have even gone so far as to banish me from associating with nice people—and have restrained me by court order, too, from entering their temples of amusement. . . . But that was because, as I was told, I had turned in sour reports, as a critic, on their plays. . . . In the 10 years since I have gone to The Play as a deputy for the newspapers, I cannot recall jotting down a kind note about Mr. Carroll's pieces. . . . And so—I am not fit, you see. . . . Then, too, in the decade of reporting things for the gazettes I have singled out Earl Carroll more than any other local—for joshing. . . . He—as the Broadway expression that Holtz made more popular—Can't Take It—himself. . . . He has complained loud and long at other gatherings about the abuse from this corner—and when at the party he made his feelings public he had good cause. . . . Oh, very good cause. . . . But the papers exaggerated when they said that I Could Take It! . . . Because I had been completely disarmed by Mr. Carroll before he flung his barbs at me. . . . He had asked me before the jury: "Can you take it? I wonder if you can—considering that you've made most of us in this room take it from your column." . . . Naturally I had to say, "Yes, go ahead." . . . But what kind of a duel is that? . . . It would have been more of an even argument had Mr. Carroll given me a choice of weapons: "Words" or "Bottles In Each Hand."

No, I take that back. . . . That's not fair, either. . . . After all, I never asked Mr. Carroll or warned him before I sat down at my machine gun ("Remington Arms") and mowed him down. . . . His frail form is crowded with scars caused by me. . . . Scars from First-Nights and gags I made up or gags relayed to me by the wits of the White Way. . . . And what a grand target has been the Earl of Broadway's "$3 house"—where, as I have remarked, the sign over his stage-door, "Through These Portals Pass the Most Beautiful Girls in the World," should be revised to read: "Through These Portals the Most Beautiful Girls in the World Pass Out!" . . . And there have been numerous other merciless jokes such as "Earl Carroll is preparing another Intimate Revue—yeh, yeh—so intimate it can be produced in a patrol wagon!"

Then the one about the chap who asked a wag if Carroll's show, "Vanities," was any good. . . . "I hate to say," was the retort awful, "I saw it under bad conditions—the curtain was up!" . . . I defended Carroll by calling his "Vanities" "The Profanities" and I reported that his attraction was an over-priced burlesk show (which it is) and that it had a lot of lovely scenery—but the actors get in front of it! . . . Mind you, for nearly 10 years, Earl Carroll has taken this form of criticism—and he never squawked until last Sunday evening. . . . Whenever we'd meet in public, he'd never mention my statements in the paper. . . . Instead, he would smile and affably say: "Hello, Walter. How are you?" . . . I knew he never was sincere with his howdys, but I didn't care. . . . I am putting on a show myself, or did you know that? . . . I mean, I have it more difficult than Carroll. . . . I must change my show every day! . . . And keep my audience interested, and often my star act is Earl Carroll.

So you see, Mr. and Mrs. America—Mr. Carroll let me off easy. . . . If I were in Mr. Carroll's sandals and you persisted in distressing me for 10 years, when I met you, whether you were my size or not—I would break your head with a loaded mineral water bottle or break the bottle on your conk! . . . I am like that—a temper when released that goes screwy like Mr. S. Solomon's—who, by the way, is just as unpopular with the newspapers at the moment as Walter Winchell is with, let's say, Mr. Earl Carroll—and millions of others, who also have darn good reasons. . . . But I have nothing personal against Mr. Carroll—and I know I can't prove that! . . . And what bothers me most now, with all this expose in the papers, is that when I hear or think of a good joke about him, when I publish it, people will say: "Oh, Winchell once was bawled out beautifully by Carroll—so he prints things about him to get even!" . . . However, I won't let that stop me. I must print quips on people and Earl Carroll will be a good boy and keep Taking His Share. . . . Carroll, if he includes himself among the decents with whom I should not associate, will be decent then, and admit this fact. . . . That I was the only reporter at his bathtub incident who didn't write about it!

And my editor, whom he was suing for a million dollars at the time, assailed me before the staff with: "You do a pretty fair column, but you're the lousiest reporter in the world! Why didn't you turn in a story on the Carroll bathtub orgy?" . . . I alibied that I was Carroll's guest, and as his guest I could not violate that distinction, etc. . . . And Mr. Carroll never knew, too, that when the Federal Government subpenaed me before the Grand Jury I told the quizzers that I couldn't think of one name of a person who was there—and that I didn't see any booch there, either. . . . "That's very amusing," sarrastically cried the prosecutor. "He calls his column His Broadway, gentlemen, and he admits that there were about 400 people there, and he is an authority on Broadway, yet, he can't think of one name!" . . . I didn't wither or wilt at that. . . . No one was ever going to say of me that my testimony helped send Carroll to Atlanta. . . . So I said: "Now, gentlemen, if you ask me what sort of a party it was, I could tell you that it wasn't a 'typical' Broadway party. I never met those West Point officials or Congressmen or Senators before—" At which someone suddenly handed me my hat and shoved me out of a door to the street. . . . You see, I am not fit to associate with decent people like—Earl Carroll.

MUSCULAR-RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Eugene L. Connelly will call the meeting to order and will introduce Attorney J. Howard Devlin, president of the Amen Corner, who will preside until the newspapermen take over the affair, when Mark Shields of the Sun-Telegraph will be chairman.

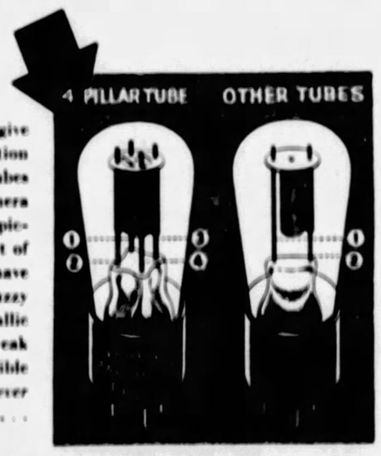
ACCURACY IS VITAL IN RADIO TUBES



YOUR radio can't give you faithful reception with inaccurate tubes any more than a camera can take true, clear pictures when it is out of focus. You don't have to put up with fuzzy tones, harsh, metallic speech and faint, weak reception. It is possible to get tubes that never lose their accuracy . . . 4-pillar tubes.

Eveready Raytheon Tubes have four sturdy pillars that anchor their sensitive elements in place. All other tubes have only two supports . . . and their elements can be knocked out of position by the inevitable jolts of shipment and handling. And by vibration from dynamic speakers. Their accuracy once impaired, they can never give flawless tone!

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. All other tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is amazing. But to realize what an enormous improvement they can make in a radio, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes . . . then listen!

Eveready Raytheon Tubes are Quick Heaters. Don't be fooled by tubes of the old, slow-heater type with which the market is flooded. A modern tube should heat up in 10 seconds or less. Time it yourself!

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Darrell V. Martin

WOULD YOU BE surprised if you picked up Floyd Gibbons' "flagship"—the Houston—in the Whangpoo River, China, about 2 o'clock in the morning? . . . Several early morning dialers (five to be exact) got us out of bed the other a. m. to tell us excitedly that they had the "Houston" on WCAE's wavelength. . . . It was the "Houston" all right but not Uncle Sam's man-of-war. . . . Another vessel by that name, anchored outside of Newport News (where, incidentally, many of our American soldiers took off for France), was transmitting over KGQJ, 1,225 kilocycles. . . . Those listeners who picked up KGQJ must be complimented, however, for the station uses only 100 watts. . . . The warship "Houston" now karuzing in Asiatic waters uses a secret wavelength the same as NPP, the American diplomatic station at Peiping, China. . . . There's little chance of picking up either one, so guard your sleep.

Question a Day:

We've had broadcasts from airplanes, submarines and whatnots but never from a moving train. Why doesn't the network attempt this some time?—Frank B., Shady avenue.

Answer—Splendid suggestion, but the stunt no doubt would have to be carried ont in Canada. The only train with telephone and radio tie-up in the world runs between Toronto and Montreal. The speaker talks into an ordinary telephone receiver and his voice passes by radio from the moving train to a parallel telephone line along the tracks. The 334-mile system cost $85,000 or $254 a mile. A stunt of this kind was promoted on a small scale by NBC about two years ago when Graham McNamee described scenery from a train before and after it passed through a Rocky Mountain tunnel.

Studio Lights:

Although we were reminded frequently last night that NBC was picking up Vincent Lopez from "Just across the street" in New York, more time was consumed in making the connections than when Mr. Lucky Strike went to Buenos Aires for his dance music . . . but the program was one of the best we've heard in this series . . . and Peggy Joyce's "Hello" a complete surprise!

A couple of nights ago Ben Bernie said China had sent for Winchell to take charge of Peking . . . Winchell put the old Whangpoo on Bernie last night with five words, no more, no less, when he retorted, "That's only a Shanghai gesture" . . . a gold star for you this month, Walter—and Ben, you stay after school for being naugh'y . . .

So Al Smith's going to run for President . . . or is he? Me, wotta man Winchell . . . at last two columns of bright, breezy news every time he speaks over WCAE, "Voice of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph" . . .

We believe the champion production job at NBC these days is on the Sherlock Holmes sketches . . . Last night's episode of "The Hound of the Baskervilles" packed more realism than most stage shows . . .

We think we've mentioned it before but in case we haven't . . . Charlie Olcott, KDKA at midnight, has one of the funniest shows on the air . . .

Aspiring young songwriters of Pittsburgh have their inning on WJAS tomorrow morning at 9:30, when Russ Smith, the Sunrise Serenader, offers a program of songs, the lyrics of which have been written by his listeners . . .

News Drama, of "The March of Time"—WJAS at 8:30—has four more weeks to go . . . and that's really news . . .

Irvin S. Cobb returns to the Armour Hour tonight at 9:30 . . . Austin Wylie is in town for the P. C. W. ball at WWSW (10 p. m.) . . . and the Theater of the Air goes "Mardi Gras" on WCAE at 10:30 . . .

Cigaret sponsors furnish most of the grist that runs the mill at NBC and CBS, but the "no smoking" rule in studios is rigidly enforced nevertheless . . .

Ray Perkins and Rudy Vallee were hilariously funny in an original song-writing act on the Fleischman Hour (WCAE) last night . . . which reminds us, that when Bebe Daniels comes yeast for her appearance with Rudy on Thursday, February 12, she will seek a raise in ante to cover traveling expenses . . .

Note to Council of the Exchequer, City of Pittsburgh—Mayor Hoan, of Milwaukee, tells on WJAS at 5:15 this afternoon how his city keeps out of debt and on a sound financial basis . . . a Hearst Radio Service feature.

Kay Donna made the skies twinkle with "Starlight" on WTAM's special welcome for Gene and Glenn last night . . . a real party and we're still explaining over the telephone and by letter that Gene and Glenn's trip to Texas was imaginary only . . . Kay sings on WTAM this afternoon at 5:30 . . .

Bob Taplinger is to interview Vaughn de Leath on WJAS next Tuesday afternoon at 5:15 . . . Starting next Monday WJAS is to offer the Singing Chef, a comedian, in mimicry of Maurice Chevalier, Tony Wons, Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor and other celebrities of past and present . . .

Speaking of impersonations, Ward Wilson mimics "Moran and Mack" over WJZ, WGAR, WSB at 6:30 tonight . . .

CBS is on edge over an American Razor Company contract which, if signed, is to bring the all-time favorite, Belle Baker, to WJAS listeners every Sunday night at 9 o'clock beginning March 13.

POLITICS

Office Holders Whose Jobs Are at Stake

By MARK SHIELDS

Mark Shields

Yesterday in this column some of the salient dates of the political year were printed. Today the calendar is completed, together with the names of the incumbents of the public offices which are at stake in state and county.

In view of the independent political activity which has marked recent campaigns in Allegheny County, one of the most interesting dates this year may be the final day for filing nomination papers in the general election by independent bodies of citizens. This is September 9.

The last day when candidates nominated at the primary election may withdraw from nomination is also September 9.

Last day to file nominations to fill vacancies caused by the withdrawal of candidates nominated at the primary election, October 4.

James J. Davis, Republican, is the United States Senator whose seat will be contested for, first in the party battles at the primary, and then in the general election.

A successor to Auditor General Charles A. Waters, (Rep.), of Philadelphia, is to be chosen. Mr. Waters, under the Constitution, is not eligible to succeed himself, but is permitted to be a candidate for the other state fiscal office, Treasurer.

Successor to Martin To Be Chosen This Year

A successor to Gen. Edward Martin, State Treasurer, is to be nominated and elected. Gen. Martin is prevented by the Constitution from succeeding himself.

The incumbents of the five congressional seats from Allegheny County are:

Edmund Erk, Thirtieth District.

Clyde Kelly, Thirty-first District.

Patrick J. Sullivan, Thirty-second District.

Harry A. Estep, Thirty-third District.

Guy E. Campbell, Thirty-fourth District.

Formerly these gentlemen were allocated to the Thirty-second to Thirty-sixth Districts, both inclusive, but reapportionment under the federal census deprived Pennsylvania of two congressmen, making the last district the Thirty-fourth. No changes were made in the geographical makeup of the Allegheny County districts.

Terms of State Senators And Legislators Expire

The two state senators whose terms expire are James J. Coyne, of the Forty-third District, and Frank J. Harris, of the Forty-fifth District.

The present members of the lower house of the Legislature, all of whose terms expire, and the districts which they now represent, are:

First—Joseph R. Lynch and Walter E. Tucker.

Eighth—Samuel J. Grenet and William F. Stadtlander.

Ninth—John A. Rhodes.

Tenth — James H. McClure, Frank J. Riddle, Carl Baldrige and Arthur Storer.

Eleventh—Frank M. Reed and Frank E. Hoffman.

Twelfth District Has Four Members

Twelfth—Fred C. Gangloff, Matthew A. Dunn and Joseph G. Steedle. This district is entitled to four members. The fourth, M. A. Musmanno, resigned from the House during the special session last December to be sworn in as a judge of County Court.

Thirteenth—Thomas W. Neely and Louis W. Haigmaier.

The majority of the incumbents have indicated they will be candidates to succeed themselves. Carl Baldrige in the Tenth district is the only one publicly to announce he will not be a candidate for re-election.

In addition to the two state senatorial places to be decided, there will be a third should County Commissioner William D. Mansfield resign his place in the Senate. His term has two more years to run, and Mansfield has a court ruling which he interprets as permission to retain both places. However, he may resign before the primary, in which event nominations would be made in his district for his unexpired term.

Embers Of Love

Lily Lou Cold To Demand of Her Sister

CHAPTER II.

Lily Lou was beginning to think about clothes.

She came home with a fashion magazine every night, spent hours poring over the ads in the evening papers. "I can't go around looking like a ragpicker any longer," she told May.

"That suit looks all right to me," Raymond said, looking it over judiciously.

"Looks terrible!"

"Oh, I don't know. A nice looking girl like you can get by with anything."

Lily Lou felt pleased. She looked down at the despised brown wool crepe suit, which had begun life shell pink, and now, after two sessions with the dye pot, was a very respectable brown. Maybe Raymond was right. Maybe she'd better not spend the money . . . still . . .

In the end she bought the new suit. It was black, with a little cape. "Just the thing for spring," the saleswoman said. Chilly enough these early spring mornings. But she never shivered after she met Ken. Excitement kept her warm.

PRIDE INFLATES

The elderly office women on the sheltered rear deck of the ferry slowly turned their necks to watch her as she passed with Ken every morning. The sewing sisters in the cabin stitched and nudged each other . . . another romance . . . that dark girl, and the cute fellow.

"He's Ken Sargent . . . You know, the Kentfield Sargents, the steamship people . . . all kinds of money . . . wonder who she is?"

Lilly Lou stepped along with Ken. She knew what the other commuters were thinking. It piqued her pride. She thought "I may be nobody now...but you wait..."

She laughed, under her breath.

"Now what's the joke?" Ken Sargent wanted to know.

She wouldn't tell him. "Some day you will know," she said dimpling.

She felt awfully sure of herself, that first spring.

Monday and Friday nights Lily Lou was late getting home. She stayed for a lesson. Ken Sargent fell into the habit of staying late on those nights, too.

When they came home on the ferry he told her little things about ships. He had been to South America.

"WEAK IN BRAIN"

"See that light on the mast of that tug...shining like a star? Do you know what that's for? That's to show she's towing something. And if the thing she's towing dragged more than six feet behind, there'd be another light on the mast. That's the way it is, Lily Lou, everything spelled right out for you, if you can read the signs—"

"You do like ships, don't you, Ken?"

"Yes—ships. But not the steamship office. I went to sea twice, did you know that? Once to South America. That's when I flunked out of school. I'm weak in the brain. Did you know that, too?"

He laughed, but Lily Lou caught the bitterness in the laugh. "Ken, dear, it isn't that! You've been doing things you don't like, that's all. Now if you could stay with the ships—"

She broke off. Realized she had said "dear."

He was confused too. She had touched a tender spot. He admired his father, and his father thought he was a ninn, . . . just because he didn't like business. . . .

To change the subject he said, "Want to go for a drive tonight?"

"It would be rather late," she said doubtfully . . . but she was thrilled. To go for a drive in the Sargent car. . . . Only, of course, she couldn't, because tonight was the night Laura Burke came to play accompaniments, and if she broke the appointment she'd have to pay her just the same.

"Nine o'clock. That isn't late! I tell you, I'll call you and let you know if I can get away. They're having some kind of a little affair on at home, and I really ought to be there."

Lily Lou's melting smile froze. "I wouldn't have you give it up for me. Besides, I have another engagement myself."

"But I don't want to stay home! It's just that the family—"

They were drawing in to Lily Lou's station. With a nod and a mumbled goodbye she was gone. She walked fast, along the two long blocks to the house.

May was flat on the sofa,

WILL ROGERS SAYS

ABOARD SS. EUROPA, Feb. 5.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, got the disarmament conference off to a good start. Can't say it wasn't runnings mooth when I left. No meeting yesterday on account of the war in China. They have to disarm between shots. Now I am going to make you a prediction. I believe that conference will get somewhere. You know why? Just because nobody thinks it will. I believe they will just accidentally do something. I have been to all of 'em and they all started out expecting big things, and then busted. At this one every delegate enters with an apology, so I kinder got some hopes. I give "Doc" Wooley her parting instructions and I am coming home to Cuckooland. God bless it. He hasn't lately, however, but he will when we deserve it. Yours, WILL.

$600,000 Borrowed To Aid Needy Here

County Aid Assured By Action of Commissioners

Relief for the 16,000 families in Allegheny County who are dependent upon the Board of Poor Directors, was assured today when the County Commissioners arranged to borrow $600,000 from the Union Trust Company.

This relief work had stopped three weeks ago when the directors announced they were without funds and had been turned down by banks.

LOAN ARRANGED

Commissioner C. C. McGovern announced the loan after the three Commissioners had gone to the Union Trust Company for a conference.

Six per cent interest will be charged on the money, which will be advanced $100,000 per month.

That 125,000 persons, or one-fourth of Allegheny County's working population, is unemployed, was charged by Dr. E. N. Clopper, secretary of the Federation of Social Agencies, before an Emergency Community Council meeting in the South Side.

Dr. Clopper gave his figures before the South Side Community Council which will organize formally at a meeting in Turner Hall next Thursday night. Frank Skalak, of the Brashear Settlement, where the meeting was held, has been named chairman of the South Side relief group.

HILL COUNCIL READY

Miss Isabel Kennedy, of the Federation of Social Agencies, expects to have the first of her community councils on relief functioning in the Hill district tomorrow, she said today.

Final meeting at Irene Kaufmann Settlement tonight was to follow three meetings held yesterday in which relief needs of three other districts were discussed, and it developed that, at the present rate of expenditure, funds of the Family Welfare Association will have run out by July 1.

Aiding Miss Kennedy in organizing the Hill district council, one of 22 projected non-administrative community clearing houses for relief in the city, are Morris Moss, of the Urban League; Miss Edith Sawyer, of the Central Y. W. C. A., and Sidney Teller, of the Kaufmann Settlement.

CITES DISTRESS

At a meeting of the Woods Run Settlement last night, Alderman George A. Young said:

"In Woods Run, in normal times, 17 industries employ 95 per cent of the residents of the district. Now but 5 per cent are at work."

Miss Mary Condon, director of training for the Family Welfare Association, said that its case burden has increased, since December, from 20,000 cases to 26,000 at the end of January. At that rate and with a continuation of the amount spent, funds will be depleted, she said, by July 1.

Miss Kennedy pointed to a meeting in Lawrenceville, yesterday afternoon, where 52 persons representing 39 agencies reported they are helping 5,000 to 6,000 families as indicating a common instance of possible widespread duplication of effort. This will be corrected by the clearing-house methods of the councils.

Parley Can't Halt Fight But It Can Hold the Coats

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The Geneva conference has a chance to make itself useful.

If it can't stop the fight it can hold the coats.

When a little group of men try to control the world it's like bobsledding on straws.

The universe is too big. You can get an idea of its size by pushing a peanut around it with your nose.

Japan and China blew out like a second-hand tire on a skid.

All the league can do is to pass resolutions condemning the bylaws and hoping that the constitution doesn't ruin the preamble.

The Japanese pulled their war at a smart time. It gives them a talking point at Geneva. They'll give up 300 miles of China and finish with 500 more than they started with.

It looks as if the rest of those delegates at Geneva will go home in kimonos.

Bail for Bunting Reduced to $2,000

On petition of Attorney Charles B. Coll, Judge Elder W. Marshall set the bail for Harry Bunting, clerk in county delinquent tax office, charged with embezzlement, at $2,000. This is a reduction of $8,000 from the original $10,000 bail asked. Bunting is charged with the embezzlement of $18,000 from the tax office. Last week he was removed from jail to Mercy Hospital. Physicians say he has a serious heart ailment.

LARGER CITIES IN EAST HAVE LOWER RATES

Philadelphia's Consumers Alone Pay More Than That Charged in Pittsburgh

Electricity rates charged domestic consumers by the Duquesne Light Company are higher than rates paid in most nearby large cities.

This has been shown by a study of charges of eight companies just completed by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The study, besides Pittsburgh, covered Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit and Philadelphia. Different methods of computing charges make direct comparison of electricity rates difficult.

It was found that peculair circumstances surrounding the use of power frequently placed charges to some individual customers out of line with those of the majority of users. For the purpose of the study, however, electric bills were computed for varying amounts of current which might be used in the average small apartment or home.

PHILA. ONLY ONE HIGHER

Philadelphia was shown to be the only one of the eight cities with charges consistently higher than in Pittsburgh for amounts of electricity which might be used by an average small family.

All the other cities were found to be lower than Pittsburgh in charge for small amounts of power. Baltimore and Cleveland were higher than Pittsburgh if large amounts of electricity were used.

In making the comparison, the Duquesne Light Company's rate C for residential lighting was used. This company has three systems of rates, but the one selected is in general use. It applies to apartments of seven rooms or less. The charges are 9 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 10 used, 6.5 cents for the next 20, 4 cents for the next 30 and 3 cents for the remainder. A discount of 1 cent per kilowatt hour is allowed on power used in the first two groups if the bill is paid promptly.

BILLS COMPUTED

For each city a light bill was computed for families using 40, 75, 100 and 200 kilowatt hours a month. In other cities rates were selected which as nearly as possible would apply to the same type of homes. Discounts were deducted.

Families using 40 kilowatt hours would have to pay $2.30 in Pittsburgh. The lowest city was Washington, with $1.56. Buffalo came next, with a bill of $1.78, Cleveland and Cincinnati stood at $2. Baltimore's bill was $2.19, Detroit was just under Pittsburgh at $2.29.

Philadelphians had to pay $2.55, which was greater than Pittsburgh. An element which must be taken into consideration, however, is the fact that the light companies in Detroit and Philadelphia replace used bulbs of the common sizes free of charge.

BUFFALO LOWEST

In the 75-kilowatt hour class Buffalo was low at $2.40. Washington was a close second at $2.85. All the others with the exception of Philadelphia were under Pittsburgh's bill of $3.55.

Pittsburgh's bill for 100 kilowatt hours was $4.30. Buffalo was low at $3.78. All the others were under Pittsburgh's bill except Cleveland with a charge of $4.40 and Philadelphia was $4.59.

In the 200-kilowatt hour class, which is more power than is ordinarily used by small families, Pittsburgh's bill was $7.30. Buffalo was again low with $4.28. Detroit was close at $5.15. The others were under Pittsburgh with the exception of Baltimore, Cleveland and Philadelphia.

Pittsburgh Airways Sale Confirmed

Sale of the property of Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., to Atlantic Airways, Inc., for $2,250, was confirmed in Common Pleas Court by Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

H. Stewart Dunn was named receiver for the company October 29 on petition of William F. Chase, a stockholder, and reorganization and refinancing of the company was planned. The Pittsburgh company operated commercial aviation lines between Pittsburgh and New Jersey and New York. Its planes were not included in the sale, as they had been repossessed by the manufacturing company.

Commission Will Confer on Poor Loan

The County Commissioners will confer today with officials of the Union Trust Company, where the County Poor Directors are seeking a loan for relief work until taxes are collected.

The Commissioners met yesterday with the bank officials, but did not conclude definite arrangements for the Poor Board's financing.

COAL OPERATORS URGE TARIFF ON OIL

Greater Gain in Price Boost For Rival Fuel Seen Than In Mining Control Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Paradoxically, several leading Pennsylvania coal operators displayed a greater faith yesterday in a tariff for a rival commodity—oil—than in a bill designed to regulate their own industry as an aid to the coal business.

A meeting of Western and Central Pennsylvania bituminous officials with the state's Republican delegation in the House to urge imposition of a duty on petroleum became a forum for discussion of the Davis-Kelly coal production stabilization bill as well.

OIL TARIFF URGED

On the theory that a tariff on oil would increase its price, the operators asked the congressmen to vote for a proposal to that end now being considered. All united in advocating it as a means of saving the coal industry from further "degradation" they claimed it had suffered at the hands of increased oil consumption for heating purposes.

Three of the leading representatives of the industry appealed to the delegation to vote against the Davis-Kelly bill designed to stabilize bituminous production.

J. A. D. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, one of the largest coal producers in the nation, led the opposition to the bill, which has been sponsored by two Pennsylvanians in Congress—Senator Davis and Representative Kelly.

FEAR UNION DRIVE

He and the others, Harry F. Bovard, of Greensburg, president of the Keystone Coal Company, and C. B. Huntress, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said they objected particularly to the bill's provisions requiring licensing of every coal company engaged in interstate commerce and permitting mine unions to conduct union membership drives in open or non-union fields.

They said they feared the bill would "open the way" to complete unionization of the Western Pennsylvania area as well as others.

Representative Brumm, of Minersville, located in the heart of the anthracite region, suggested the coal operators join in a move to obtain a tariff on imported anthracite and bituminous coal as well as oil.

MRS. CATHERINE LYDON

Mrs. Lydon, 35, as she appeared today at the police court rail in East End Station to accuse her brother-in-law of binding her to chair for 12 hours.

TIED IN CHAIR, WOMAN SAYS

Mrs. Catherine Lydon, 35, of 1307 Olivant street, testified in East End Police Court today that she had been bound to a chair for 12 hours yesterday by her brother-in-law, Michael Scanlon, in his home, 101 South St. Clair street, when she complained against his selling liquor to her husband.

Scanlon was held for court by Magistrate Charles Papale. He denied Mrs. Lydon's story, testifying that she had been at liberty to go anywhere in his home, and that her husband, Martin Lydon, was there at the time.

John Haney, of 5934 Kincaid street, arrested with Scanlon when police raided the place, was fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse, charged with visiting a disorderly house.

A passing automobile was attracted by Mrs. Lydon on the front porch of the Scanlon home and took her to the Pittsburgh Hospital. Police reported confiscating a small quantity of moonshine and home brew in Scanlon's place.

GIRL ATTACKED IN CABIN, 3 HELD

WELLSBORO, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Three members of the backwoods "Wolf Gang" of five men were in jail today awaiting court action after 12-year-old Josephine Hoosier made her first trip to town to tell how they attacked her while they compelled her father and mother to look on helpless.

The alleged outlaws made a surprise attack on his cabin in the sparse timber country of Southern Tioga County, the girl's father, Ernest Hoosier, 68, told police after tramping 20 miles to town yesterday. One held him on his back with a forked stick pressed over his neck, while another bound his wife, he said.

As a result, Lester Gregory, Marvin English, and Walter Landis are held. Guy Landis and Harman Disner were released on a surety bond to keep the peace.

"Choosey" People like the way they TASTE..

It's just what you'd expect. People who enjoy the good things of life... are constantly looking for something better to eat and drink... and smoke. Something that's out of the ordinary.

In cigarettes this better taste can come only from finer ingredients. Chesterfields are more satisfying to the cultivated palate... because there's never any attempt to skimp on Turkish leaf.

These more expensive... more richly flavored Turkish tobaccos are added with a generous hand... and 'choosey' people... everywhere... like the result.

In fact Chesterfield's new way of mingling tobacco flavors and aromas is really equivalent to creating an entirely new kind of tobacco... one that combines the best qualities of Turkish and fine Domestic leaf.

Perhaps you've noticed that the paper in Chesterfields is whiter... purer. Thousands of dollars were spent on research to perfect this paper. It burns without any taste or odor of its own. A detail, of course. But it adds immeasurably to your enjoyment.

Smoke Chesterfields whenever you like... They're mild and pure. They'll never tire you as an over-sweetened cigarette might easily do. Day in... day out... Chesterfields taste right. Light up and see for yourself. They satisfy!

PICKING HUSBAND -:- Hollywood Studio Finds It Isn't So Easy

At Last the Movie Nina Gets Her Three Men With the Favored Ones Out

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.

After all, none of the favored ones will get the role of the husband in "Strange Interlude." In a final huddle, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials have picked Alexander Kirkland for the role.

Mr. Kirkland, as yet little known to screen fans, will come over from Fox where he has just supported Elissa Landi in "The Devil's Lottery." Before that, he did a picture with Violet Heming.

Mr. Kirkland

Like Richard Bennett, this actor came to the coast for his health and was persuaded to have a fling at the talkies. On Broadway he worked for the Theater Guild. With the casting of the husband the "Strange Interlude" company is nearly complete. The lineup will be Norma Shearer as the heroine Nina, Clark Gable as the doctor, Ralph Morgan as Charlie and Mr. Kirkland as the husband.

The famous asides you recall will be spoken by the players' voices, but there will be no lip movement. Thus synchronization will be one of Director Robert Leonard's major problems.

BE THOUGHT FAST

Take it from Spencer Tracy. The worst of a physical mishap is explaining it to your friends.

Showing up with a limp the other day, Spencer ran the complete studio gauntlet. Finally, he met Frank Borzage.

"Wait," he snapped, "I tripped over the wolf when I came out the door."

GOSSIP OF CELEBS

Joseph Schenck's yacht, "The Invader," sails Sunday or Monday for Tahiti. Douglas Fairbanks follows on the seventeenth with Chuck Lewis and a crew of technicians. They'll pick up the yacht on the island and make it the base of their explorations . . . Wearing thin dresses on location in this snappish weather has sent Lupe Velez to bed with a case of pleurisy . . . Dick Arlen and Jobyna Ralston celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary last week . . . Saw Joan Marsh with Randolph Scott at the Paramount studio. She was just visiting, as M. G. M. has her under contract . . . Gary Cooper's dad showed up at the studio yesterday with a cargo of fresh dates grown on Gary's ranch near Palm Springs . . . Jack Oakie is one star who don't use airplanes. "The air is for birds and bees and they can have it," he flips . . . Edgar Wallace has written a thriller for Radio called "Man Without a Face." Merian Cooper will produce it. This is not the prehistoric animal story, but another of Wallace's Hollywood scenarios . . . George O'Brien and Larry Kent are off on a cruise . . . Stormy weather for it, too.

Richard Arlen

WARNERS LIKE HIM

Fox may hay lost its enthusiasm for Hardie Albright, but, as so often happens, this young actor is doing well at another studio. Warners have assigned him to play one of the leads opposite Joan Blondell in "Miss Pinkerton." He just finished there in "So Big."

Dorothy Jordan to Play Southern Belle

Dorothy Jordan won't have to hide her Southern drawl in her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Wet Parade," for in her role she depicts a little Southern belle from near the same locality she came from in Tennessee.

In Comedy

Verree Teasdale has the leading feminine role in "Experience Unnecessary," comedy coming to the Alvin Monday as the next Professional Players' offering.

War Is Fun In Fulton

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Suicide Fleet," breezy comedy drama of war, opened yesterday in the Fulton. It is the story of three pals, all in love with the same girl, who join the Navy and fight German submarines.

Bill (Volga Boatman) Boyd, James Gleason and Robert Armstrong comprise the trio. They refuse to take the war, or anything else seriously. The result is plenty of laughs.

Though Mr. Boyd gets featured billing and the girl, it is really the lanky, wise-cracking, bald-headed Mr. Gleason who puts up the best show.

The boys, who leave Ginger Rogers at her candy counter on Coney Island when the war begins, find themselves aboard a disguised merchant ship, set in the middle of the ocean as a decoy for enemy submarines. And when three U-boats arrive at the same time there is a lot of boom-boom.

However, the movies do right by Old Glory. A whole parade of U. S. destroyers comes along in the nick of time with Harry Bannister, former Pittsburgh stock actor, in command.

And so the fadeout.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A cold and calculating young business man and his secretary are the central figures of "Experience Unnecessary," which will be next week's Professional Players' comedy in the Alvin. He thinks women are a disturbing influence in a man's life and that idea is said to lead to much fun. Walter Woolf and Verree Teasdale play the principal roles. Matinee days are mid-week and week-end.

Small Timer says let those who will admire the feminine form divine, and there is still a good deal to be said for the figures on a check.

'Tis announced that "The Band Wagon" can tarry in the Nixon for only one week, as it is booked for Detroit for the week following the Pittsburgh engagement and for a Chicago opening February 22. George S. Kaufman and Howard Dietz are the authors of "T. B. W.", which stars Fred and Adele Astaire, Frank Morgan and Helen Broderick. Wednesday and Saturday will be afternoon show days.

* * *

Small Timer says you won't have to worry how you stand if you keep going forward.

Conrad Nagel, who is personal-appearancing in the Penn, started out to be an architect, but changed his course after the first year in college from which he graduated as a bachelor or oratory. He "acted" in school, too, and when he left he toured a lyceum circuit as a reader. Some time in stock was followed by dramatic and stage experience. His first pix work was in 1918 in "Little Woman," made in New York. That fine voice of his is said to be an inheritance from a concert-singing mother.

Small Timer says a Scotsman never finds it necessary to pull himself together because he already is close enough.

Phidelah Rice will be seen in "The Servant in the House" in Carnegie Music Hall Monday night. Phidelah and who else? Nobody. Mr. Rice is a protean actor and he plays all the parts himself. He recently played an engagement in the Belmont Theater, New York.

Janet Gaynor, Farrell Again to Co-Star

Willys and Auburn Merger Plan Denied

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Rumors current for several days in financial circles of an impending consolidation of the Willys-Overland and the Auburn were denied here last night by L. A. Miller, president of Willys-Overland Company. He said:

"Our company is not going to merge with anybody."

Law, Politics In Picture

Law versus underworld politics, and the wiles of a woman used as a tool to wreck a city, are the highlights on which were built "The Beasts of the City," a Cosmopolitan picture, soon to be released in Pittsburgh.

Essentially a dramatic romance, the new film is said to contain startling "inside" facts about the relationship of the underworld with corrupt politics. It shows in detail the truth about police activities in the modern American city, and in some of its episodes provide an expose of the entire modern structure of municipal political life. The story of "The Beast of the City" is based on facts taken mostly from police records and the newspapers. The picture casts a new and startling light on police work today.

Among the scenes of the new picture are sequences dealing with thrilling police alarms, radio broadcasts, battles with gangsters and a bank robbery. Crooked political deals are bared and the machinations of criminal lawyers revealed.

Walter Huston, who appeared in "Abraham Lincoln" and "The Criminal Code," plays a police chief who is in the center of a struggle to wipe out the criminal element. Jean Hersholt, well-known character actor, plays an underworld ruler. Wallace Ford and Jean Harlow also play leading roles and Tully Marshall, Mickey McGuire and Dorothy Peterson are prominently cast. Charles Brabin directed "The Beast of the City," an original story for the screen by W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar."

English Actor Comes To Hollywood

Herbert Mundin, newcomer to Hollywood, soon is to be seen as the humorous cockney taxi driver in "The Silent Witness," a mystery drama with Lionel Atwill, Greta Nissen and Weldon Heyburn. Mundin is an Englishman with a background of years of experience in the music halls of that country.

Walter Winchell on Broadway Feature Appears on Page 16 in Today's Paper.

Swings High

Marion Davies swings high on a trapeze in "Polly of the Circus," her newest starring picture, now in the making in Hollywood.

HEROISM CITED IN SHIP BLAST

MARCUS HOOK, Pa., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Acts of bravery by rescuers who heroically disregarded their own peril and snatched some of those on the explosion-wrecked oil tanker Bidwell from certain death in the tragedy which had exacted a toll of at least 17 lives were disclosed today.

The heavy loss of life was discovered only when the bodies of several seamen trapped on the vessel when it caught fire after four terrific explosions were found in the charred wreckage. Among the victims was Capt. Joseph Rivers, New York City, who perished trying to save his records. A. B. Selch, Houston, is missing.

Mrs. Rivers, seriously injured, owes her life to the courageous action of Edward Cartain, Buckman Village, Pa.

He sped from the pier to the flaming ship, swimming through a hole torn in the ship's side until he reached the woman, who was floating about, unconscious, a life preserver around her body. Burning oil surrounded her. Cartain reached her as the blaze threatened to envelop her and swam back to the pier with her.

Onion a Staple Article of Diet for Centuries

This is one of the oldest known vegetables and is tempting served in any of a large number of forms.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.
United States Senator From New York.

Among the wholesome vegetables is the onion. It is a common garden vegetable originally found in Asia but now grown all over the world. The onion is one of the oldest known foods and has been a staple article of diet for centuries.

There are many varieties of the onion, classified according to size, shape, color and flavor. The most popular are chives, Bermuda or Spanish onion, garlic or clove, onion, leek, scallion, shallot and the common onion which may be red, yellow, white or silver in its skin.

Certain sections of the country prefer the red onion and others demand the white onion. The choice depends upon the individual taste and smell. When the onion is grown in warm places it is milder and sweeter than those grown in colder climates. The onion contains an oil rich in sulphur which produces the characteristic onion smell.

Onions are used in so many ways the housewife would be at a loss without this valuable vegetable. It is an important ingredient in the preparation of meat, fish, soups, salads and other vegetables. The value of the onion is mainly due to its aid in making dishes tempting and palatable.

It contains about 81 per cent of water, and the balance is made up of a sweet, starchy flesh. In some countries the raw onion is eaten as we eat apples. Men have been known to endure great fatigue for days having only onions and bread for food.

The onion is one of the least expensive vegetables and can be purchased all year round. Onion soup is delicious, nourishing and economic. In France this is one of the best-known dishes and its popularity is spreading in this country.

Onions should be stored in a dry, airy place to prevent waste and rotting. If possible the leaves should not be removed as they protect against bruising. When the tops are taken off avoid cutting too close to the bulbs.

This vegetable should be used more frequently during the winter months when other vegetables are expensive and scarce. Onions which are boiled, braised, creamed or fried aid in making a tempting and pleasing menu.

HEART TOKENS — Two cups shortening, 1½ cups sugar, ¼ cup milk, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 1 teaspoon vanilla or grated rind of 1 lemon, ¾ cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder.

Cream shortening and sugar together, add milk to beaten eggs and blend thoroughly. Add slowly to creamed shortening and sugar. Add flavoring. Add 2 cups of flour sifted with salt, baking powder and nutmeg, and enough more flour to make a dough that will roll easily. Roll out to ⅛-inch on floured board. Cut with large heart-shaped cutter. Bake about 10 minutes in moderate oven, 375 F. When cold, decorate with white or pink icing to give effect of lacy valentine. With a pastry tube the name or nickname of each guest may be written on cookie. Serve on a lace paper doily.

BANANA BREAD — One cup sugar, 2 eggs, beaten light, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 3 large bananas, 1 cup coarsely chopped nutmeats, ¼ cup butter, 1½ tablespoons sour milk, ½ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 cups flour.

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, then bananas (putting through sieve) and liquid ingredients. Add nuts and sifted dry ingredients. Blend thoroughly and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350 F.). Makes 2 medium-size loaves.

APRICOT PARFAIT — One-half pound dried apricots, ½ cup sugar, 2 egg whites, ½ cup whipping cream.

Soak apricots over night, or cook until tender. Drain off the juice in which they have been soaked or cooked, add juice to the sugar and boil until syrup spins a thread. Pour the syrup over stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Continue beating until cool. Press the apricots through a sieve and chill. Whip the cream until stiff, add the apricot pulp, and fold in the egg white mixture. Freeze ¼ hour in refrigerator or pack in salt and ice.

BAKED CUSTARD—Two cups milk, 2 or 3 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains nutmeg, ½ teaspoon flavoring.

Scald milk. Set oven at 350 degree F. Break eggs into a bowl and beat with a silver fork until yolks and whites are blended. Add sugar and salt and mix thoroughly. Add hot milk gradually, then flavoring, stirring until mixed. Strain into quart measure or pitcher. Brush 4 custard cups or one mold with melted butter. Put 8 or 10 thicknesses of paper in a baking pan and put custard cups on paper. Pour custard into molds and sprinkle with nutmeg. Surround with hot water to the height of the custards, place in oven and leave 35-40 minutes. Test with knife blade. When done remove from pan, cool, turn out carefully and chill.

CHICKEN TIMBALES—Ham, sweetbreads, or liver may also be used. One half cup soft bread crumbs, 2-3 cup milk or stock, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, few grains pepper, ½ tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 eggs, 1 cup cooked chicken.

Cook bread crumbs and milk about 10 minutes, or until thickened. Add butter, salt, paprika, pepper and parsley. Chop chicken very fine or put through food chopper using finest blade. Beat eggs until light and add with chicken to first mixture. Turn into well greased molds and bake. Serve with mushroom or bechamel sauce.

A combination of chicken meat and chicken livers makes a delicious timbale. For calves' liver timbales or for sweetbread timbales, cook the meat first in boiling salted water until tender, then chop fine or mash.

CREAM OF BEET SOUP—One medium onion, 1 teaspeen butter, 1¼ cups water, 1¼ cups finely chopped fresh rooked or canned beets, ½ cup meat stock, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 1¼ cups thin cream, 1 tablespoon vinegar.

Cut the onion fine and cook in the butter until soft and yellow. Add the water, beets and meat stock and heat to the boiling point. (If meat stock is not available a beef or chicken bouillon cube may be dissolved in ½ cup of boiling water.) Add salt and pepper and the cream and again reheat to the boiling point. Remove from the fire, add the vinegar and serve at once.

STUFFED SHOULDER OF VEAL—Remove the bone from the shoulder of veal without cutting through the outer skin. Fill the cavity with a rich stuffing, sew up and truss into shape. Dredge with flour and roast, basting with melted butter or bacon drippings, and hot water. Roast, allowing 20 minutes to the pound. An hour before the meat is done arrange around it peeled raw potatoes cut in halves and bake basting with the drippings. Thicken the gravy with flour browned in fat and serve immediately. The breast of veal may be used instead.

ARTICHOKE SALAD—6 large artichokes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons capers.

Remove first two layers from artichokes and cut off stems. Remove spines by clipping tips from leaves with scissors. Wash thoroughly and place in large amount of rapidly boiling water. Lower heat and continue boiling gently 15 to 20 minutes or until tender. When nearly done add salt. Remove from water and drain stem-end up. Chill. Remove choke. Serve on crisp lettuce using ¼ cup mayonnaise sprinkled with capers to each salad. Serves 6.

COCOA BRAN MUFFINS—2 cups bran, ¾ cup flour, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 scant teaspoon soda, ½ cup molasses, 1½ cups milk, 1 tablespoon melted shortening.

Mix bran, flour, cocoa, salt and soda thoroughly. Add the well-beaten eggs, melted shortening, milk and molasses, and stir. When well blended, bake in greased muffin tins for 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

FRUIT CHEESE CAKE—One half pound flour, ½ pound cottage cheese, ½ pound butter, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Mix thoroughly; this mixing will take about 15 minutes, as it must be well mixed. Place the mixture in the refrigerator over night. Next day roll out to about ⅛-inch in thickness and cut into 4-inch squares.

For economy, cut 8 slices of canned pineapple in half, making 16 slices. Place 1 piece on each square, fold corners over the fruit. Prick and bake in moderate oven 8 to 10 minutes or until slightly brown. Sprinkle powdered sugar over them when they are taken from the oven. Prunes or apricots may be used in place of the pineapple, making a larger number as the fruit is small. Best when served hot or warm.

CREOLE STEAK—Salt and pepper 2 pounds of round steak and dredge well with flour. Brown on both sides in a little fat in a heavy skillet. Remove meat, add 1 shredded green pepper and 6 small whole onions and brown. Return meat to pan, spread with prepared mustard and pile the pepper and onions on top and around the steak. Add 1 10-ounce can tomatoes, cover tightly and cook slowly until very tender. Just before done add 1 11-ounce can peas. Serves six.

* * *

SAUTEED SALMON SLICES WITH CREAMED PEAS—Add ½ teaspoon salt to 1½ cups boiling water, add ½ cup cornmeal and cook until thick. Add ½ tall can salmon, salt and pepper to taste and a few drops of lemon juice. Pack into a greased loaf pan and let chill. Cut in slices, dip in fine crumbs and saute in fat until a nice brown. Make a white sauce of 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour and 1½ cups diluted evaporated milk, season to taste and add 1 8-ounce can peas. Serve with this sauce poured over the slices. Serves four.

OYSTER STEW — One quart oysters, 4 cups scalded milk, ¼ cup butter, ½ tablespoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Clean oysters by placing them in a colander and pouring cold

THANKS TO CALUMET'S DOUBLE-ACTION!

MAYBE you're a pretty swell waffleer already. And maybe you can't see how any baking powder could improve your waffles. But try this recipe just once—make Dixie Waffles with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder—and you'll be a Calumet waffleer for life!

Calumet's Double-Action—there's the secret. That's what makes the difference. Here's how it works. In the mixing bowl, Calumet's first action begins. It starts the leavening. Then, on the hot waffle iron, Calumet's second action begins. Steadily, evenly, this new fresh rising swells through the batter and holds it light and fluffy until the waffle is perfectly baked. And the same thing happens when Calumet goes into your cakes and quick breads. Calumet's first action gets the leavening properly started. Then, in the oven, the second action gets on the job and carries your baking through to a super-delicate, delicious finish.

An added saving too!—The simple, tested recipe given here is a Calumet recipe. It calls for only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour. That's the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results. A splendid economy for you! Try Calumet—see why it is the world's largest-selling baking powder. Get Calumet at your grocer's to-day!

Calumet is a product of General Foods Corporation.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Is It Right to Ruin Anyone's 'Fool's Paradise?'

Shall Effie tell her sister that the husband she adores and trusts—

Is cheating—?

"I just can't decide myself," she wails. "In every way but just that one, he is good to her. He gives her everything that she and the children want. And she thinks the sun rises and sets in him—

"But I hate to see her made a fool of."

What would your answer be if Effie asked you that question?

Would you tell—or wouldn't you? And if you were sister would you want to be told?

"Dear Miss Sally:

"I have a problem that is giving me a great deal of worry and I wish you would tell me what to do.

"It isn't really my trouble but my sister's.

"She is married and has four youngsters, three girls and a little boy. She has been married now for 11 years and she has been a good wife and a devoted mother. She is pretty, too, and attractive, and everyone likes her.

"She adores her husband and thinks he is just marvelous. He is good to her and generous. She and the children have everything they could want.

"But he chases around with other women. Everyone knows it but my sister. It is not a case of his 'falling for' any certain woman, or anything like that. He really is just a 'chaser.' It is the line of his business, he has to be away from home a good deal, and when he is he goes on all kinds of wild parties and everyone knows it.

IS UNDECIDED

"Shall I tell her this? I have to hurt her, but I also hate to see him making such a fool of her, especially since she trusts him so, and believes that he is such a perfect man.

"Please help me. I don't know what to do. My heart aches every time I think of the way he is two-timing her, and how folks feel sorry for her about it. It has me all upset. I love her, and I just can't stand the thought of his cheating her like that. 'EFFIE F.'

Shall you tell her, my dear?

Maybe it will seem strange to you, but my answer is no. Don't.

You see, just as you said in your letter, it is not your problem. It is hers. And you must keep hands off. We none of us have any right to butt in on another's life, as you are thinking of doing.

THEIR PROBLEM

Perhaps after all she does know, and doesn't want you to know she does. And if she is living in a 'Fool's Paradise,' as you think she is, she won't thank you for destroying that paradise, even if it does exist only in her own imagination.

Her problem is between her and her husband and you have no right to step in and meddle. No matter how much you may love her and wish to 'put her wise.' No one has a right to meddle between husband and wife, and if you do it you may be doing far more harm than her husband could ever do her.

Ask her to a matinee, or another lip, youngster. Get over the idea that she is making a fool of her. No one else's faithlessness can ever make a fool of us. Only our own weaknesses can mark us as fools. And her love and trust are worthwhile even though her man may not be worthwhile.

That is my answer to Effie. But maybe you think I am wrong. If you do think so—why. Tell us.

No matter how smart anyone may be considered in his own set the other fellow is just as wise in the ways of his own little world so that no one can afford to feel smug and superior.

You may be one who knows exactly what to wear and what to say in those exclusive dining circles where to be confused by silver asparagus tongs is a grave social error.

But what is being worn and what is being done in society circles would be considered decidedly "de trop" in some other places.

Every environment of life is interesting in its own way and none is without its good points and its bad points.

Sometimes society and the slums are aligned in lamentable degree.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Awkwardly Faces Veritzen

Philip Veritzen rose from his chair as I entered the library with the manuscript of my third act in my hand. If he had any vivid remembrance such as mine that the room in which we were sitting was the same one in which our memorable and unpleasant interview of the Christmas Eve preceding had been staged, there was not the slightest hint of it in his manner.

"Ah, Mrs. Graham," he said, taking my outstretched hand and bending over it in the formal kiss which is his invariable greeting to any woman of his social world, "it is indeed a joy to see you in such blooming health and beauty. I was afraid our late visit last night would fatigue you unduly, but I need not ask you if you are feeling well, for I never saw you looking better."

I did not have to withdraw my hand pointedly from his clasp, as invariably had been the case whenever he had greeted me in the years during which I had been the historical authority for his dramatic organization. There was relief in the knowledge, but, though I was furious at my petty weakness, I think any woman will understand that the satisfaction was alloyed with the base metal of pique, so slight that I furiously denied it to myself, but so distinct that I knew the denial was worthless.

"I am very well, thank you," I said with perfunctory demureness. "and you? You also are looking very fit. I trust you have had a pleasant trip."

"I never was in better health in my life," he said, and indeed, his appearance justified the boast.

He drew forward a chair for me, and I sat down, with my manuscript clasped tightly in my hands, and with much the feeling of a reluctant witness awaiting cross-examination.

"Suppose you let me take that," he said softly, holding out his hand for the manuscript. "You will have it pinched into fragments if you hold it thus tightly much longer."

His eyes were dancing with kindly mischief, and his tone held the tender indulgence with which one soothes a flustered child. But there was nothing in either tone or eye to make me restive, or which held any trace of the romantic personal note which he had so persistently sounded during our former association.

I held out the manuscript to him gingerly and drew back my hand quickly when he took it. I was hardly conscious of the action. Indeed, I had made that hasty withdrawal of my hand so often in the years of my association with my employer that it had become practically a subconscious thing. For rarely did Philip Veritzen refrain from trying to cover my hands with his own whenever proximity made the action plausible and not too pointed.

Today, however, there was no need for my gesture, and I flushed as I realized that I had been mid-Victorian for nothing. The flush deepened to a flame as I saw in Philip Veritzen's mirthful eyes that he had noticed my gesture of recoil. But, an instant later, all the mirth left his eyes and was succeeded by an expression of such kindly, comradely understanding that I felt suddenly a relaxation of the nervous apprehension which I had brought to this interview.

"Suppose we clear the decks for action," he said, smiling at me. "We never shall be able to work together harmoniously if we do not get rid of some unpleasant recollections and start afresh."

He looked steadily at me for a few seconds before going on, and there was something in that kindly regard which lessened perceptibly the reluctance to work with him, amounting almost to aversion, with which I had entered the room.

"Will you promise to say nothing until I have finished?" he asked. "If I pledge you that there will be nothing in what I say which should cause you even a fleeting annoyance?"

"I will listen quietly," I promised, then sat back gripping the arms of my chair for support.

"I never have had the opportunity to apologize for my conduct of last Christmas night," he began, and I had difficulty in keeping my promise not to interrupt him. It seemed to me that I could not bear any open reference to that humiliating episode. But, "my word is my bond," and I held strictly to it.

"If I had dreamed—of—conditions—" he said, pausing between the words, and as I reflected that I had never seen Philip Veritzen hesitant before, I again recalled Lillian's flippant remark that "old Phil did not care for the Madonna motif."

"If I had dreamed," he repeated, "I want you to believe that I never should have wounded and terrified you, as I realized afterwards I must have done."

He rose and began to pace the floor quickly as I had seen him do several times in the throes of some momentous decision.

"Do not misunderstand me," he said at last. "I am not speaking in the present but in the past, when I tell you that from the time I first saw you you meant to me all that was lovely and desirable in womanhood."

Correct Manners

Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I received an invitation to a church wedding and a reception at a hotel from a very good friend of mine, and, as circumstances prevented me from attending, I should like to know what would be the proper reply to send them.

2. I would also like to know if it would be proper to send them a gift and, if so, what would be appropriate? MR. A.

1. We should reply at once to an invitation to the wedding reception. The invitation to the church ceremony does not need a reply.

When we answer the reception invitation we use the first page of a double sheet of formal note paper, and as we word our reply, we use, as far as possible, the form of wording of the invitation, and the spacing. Like this:

Mr. Edgar Andrews
regrets that he is unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrison's kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of March.

2. Yes, you will. If you have received an invitation to the wedding, wish to send a gift for the new home. And anything for the home would be appropriate; something for the table, in silver, glass, china, linen; something for the desk; a smoking accessory; a vase, of silver or glass; a lamp, candlesticks.

Illustrating Trick Counting

OFFICIAL SYSTEM
As Adopted by Leading Authorities

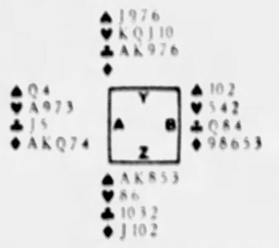
The following hand was just bid and played by a table of ladies who used the 3-2-1 point counting method. Their stories of how they valued their hands and reasoned as bidding progressed well illustrate what should be done



Lacking opening bid requirements of 2½ quick tricks, Z passed. With 3 quick tricks, A made an opening bid of 1-Diamond. She counted 9 points in the suit; 3 points in heart; before opponents bid she also counted 1 point in spades. This total of 13 points (6½ probable tricks) was not enough for a bid of more than her call of 1-Diamond.

Rather than attempt to show both her hearts and clubs by direct bids, Y made an informatory double, hoping that her partner might bid spades. The most that B could count her hand was 4 points, or only about one-half enough for an honest assist, so she passed.

Z's cards counted 18 points with spades as trumps. The diamond honor possessed no value after A's bid of that suit. A thoroughly sound informatory double assures partner of 4 assisting tricks when the double is of a minor bid, and assures 5 probable tricks when a major suit bid of one is doubled. If that were true in this case, Z knew that she could fulfill a contract of 2-Spades and she made that unnecessarily high bid to show her values. A could not rebid, and she passed. As support for a spade declaration, Y counted her hand as follows: spades 2 points; hearts 6 points; clubs 5 points; diamonds 4 points; total 17 points, or 8½ probable tricks. Z's unnecessarily high response to the double showed at least 4 playing tricks, which with Y's count of 8½ probable tricks should yield a small slam, if all went well. It is, however a fact that when trick counting exceeds 10, a greater or less duplication of values occurs. The fact that Z had declined to open contracting certainly denied that she held solid tops in spades, accompanied by the missing A of hearts.

Moreover, it was almost certain that A's opening bid was not based solely upon a solid suit of diamonds. A must hold a part of the missing honors of either spades or hearts, rendering a grand slam an impossibility, but making a small slam a good gamble, so Y ended bidding with 6-Spades. This was really made by discarding one of Z's losing clubs and one losing diamond on two good hearts in dummy, and having Y trump two diamonds.

On the hand shown below Z made an opening bid of 1-Heart. A jumped to 3-No Trumps. Y led the 10 of hearts; B's J covered; Z played his Q. How should A play and what can he make against any further defense by Y-Z? The answer will appear tomorrow.

Household Hints

Wrap a piece of waxed paper around the knife blade before cutting butter or cheese into squares for serving. It will make much neater pieces.

The best way to clean the coffee pot is to boil it well in water containing borax. If the pot is not made of aluminum, soda will do the trick as well as borax, but soda is very hard on aluminum ware.

One woman who has a particularly heavy head of hair employs the following method of drying it after a shampoo. She lights the oven, turns the gas low, lowers the oven door and places the electric fan on the lowered door. The warmed air dries her hair in no time.

How to Keep Well :-:

Eat Bulky Foods to Promote Health

Until a few years ago, the value of foods was expressed in terms of their content of protein, carbohydrates and fat. The next step forward in food appraisal was the recognition of the value of the mineral salts. At a later date, the value of the vitamins was discovered and acknowledged.

Dr. Copeland

Although the literature on nutrition contains hardly more than brief references to it, there is another element which foods contain in varying degrees. It is only recently that some of our leading physicians have come to recognize its importance.

I refer to the quality that some foods have for promoting the physical well-being. This evidence of good health is shown by one's spirits, the clearness of the eye, the lustre of the hair, the smoothness of the skin, and the general bodily comfort. All these good effects result from the normal functioning of the digestive tract. Needless to say, the delightful sense of well-being has its influence upon the behavior, good nature, and efficiency of the individual.

One of the foods which carries this most recently recognized factor in greatest abundance is wheat bran. So important has this food become as an adjunct of our diet that special methods of cooking, flavoring and crumbling have been perfected. These methods increase both the palatability of the bran and its value to the system.

One quality in bran has been recognized more than its others—that its use is an ideal way to add cellulose or bulk to the diet. This helps amazingly to relieve common constipation in a safe and natural manner. This quality is so generally understood that bran is recommended for this purpose in many of our standard medical works.

Within the past few months clinical investigation has proved another thing. It shows that bran is rich in vitamin "B," which improves the tone of the intestinal muscles. It has been established, too, that bran contains relatively large amounts of iron. This mineral is most important in the making of good red blood. This inorganic iron in bran is easily assimilated by the body.

GOOD HITTER TOO WEAK IN FIELDING

YOU'VE OFTEN HEARD it said that in baseball it doesn't matter so much about a player's fielding; that he has only to be able to hit that ball in order to get by. But a case to the contrary is brought to attention in the release of George Grantham by the Pittsburgh club. No other club could be induced to give up a player in exchange for him and he had to be let go to the tailend Reds for just a little more than the waiver price.

George Grantham

And the low value placed on Grantham's service is all due to his fielding defects. Offensively, George was for years one of the most valuable players in the big show. As a spring hitter, in particular, he had few equals, and as a hitter, baserunner and run getter he was far ahead of the average pastimer at any stage of the season. In 913 games in seven seasons for the Pirates, he scored 625 runs and made 992 hits, an average of 89 runs and 141 hits per year. In one season, 1930, he scored 120 runs, and there wasn't a year during his stay here in which he failed to hit above .300.

FOR THAT REASON, and on account of his ability to hold down various positions satisfactorily for short periods, Grantham for a long time was deserving of a much higher ranking than was generally conceded to him. He could hit, he could run, he was versatile. But in a defensive sense George just couldn't deliver for any length of time.

The Bucs tried him at first and second bases, also in the outfield, and on one spring trip he was even tried at third. But he just couldn't be made to fit in anywhere. He almost lost the 1925 world series before he was yanked out and Stuffy McInnis was substituted at first base, and in several later chances at second base he appeared only to get worse instead of better. Now Grantham goes to a tailend club as one of the queerest cases on record—nine years in the big show and yet no one knows where he belongs in a lineup.

THE LIFE OF even a world champion club in baseball is short. Only six seasons have gone by since the Pirates, using 29 players during the campaign, won the big title in 1925, but with the departure of Grantham, following the release of Jewel Ens, just two remain who figured in the managerial, playing or coaching divisions of that outfit.

These are Third Baseman Pie Traynor and Pitcher Remy Kremer. Only 11 of the whole crew, counting managers and coaches, are still in the big shows. Even of the 1927 pennant winners, the only men used that year who remain, in addition to Traynor and Kremer, are the Waner brothers and Adam Comorosky.

FOR THE FIRST time since the agitation for the elimination of stalling from basketball was begun, Coach Carlson, of Pitt, found himself on the other side of the question recently. When Carnegie Tech gained a lead on Pitt right after the opening whistle and then took the ball into the backcourt, the Panthers were placed in the same position in which they have placed many opponents. However, taking the word of their coach that it is the low-score team that is responsible for delaying the action, they went right out and took the ball away from the Tartans.*

Kiki Cuyler

THAT AN ATTEMPT was made by the New York Giants to trade First Baseman Bill Terry to the Cubs for Outfielder Kiki Cuyler is the disclosure made by Rogers Hornsby. The Bruin manager, who turned down the proposal, says he would like to get Terry, but can't afford to give up an outfielder to get him.

As a matter of fact he is looking for an outfielder for his own use. He says he's willing to buy, and has plenty of money to that end, but can't find anyone in a mood to sell the kind of man he seeks.

HORNSBY IS UNCERTAIN about Stephenson. He rates Danny Taylor and Richbourg as pretty good outfielders, but is of an open mind on Barton. Moore, Kreevich and Gudat. Barton can field, but his hitting is in doubt.

Hornsby makes it known that every position in the Cub infield except shortstop is open. English will play short, and the manager repeats that he considers Woody the most valuable player to his club in the league. Rogers will be in there himself this spring battling for a job, he says, and before he gets out the youngsters will have to show him they are better than he is.

EDDIE KENNEDY, veteran local boxing referee and a whale of a fighter himself in his day, becomes more and more disgusted as he views some of the modern slappers. "They don't know what a real punch means," he said. "All they do is slap with the open glove, and it's a mystery to me how they get away with it and actually get decisions. It's all illegal, and they ought to be disqualified. They're supposed to hit only with the knuckles. And yet they become very indignant when they're even warned. When I called the attention of one of them to the fact that he was hitting with the open glove and violating the rules, he asked: 'What are you trying to do? Give me a boxing lesson?' I told him it certainly looked as though he needed one.*

"IT'S THE SAME with the holding and clinching you see in present-day bouts. All foul stuff. A boxer is not supposed to lay a hand on an opponent except for a clean hit. You'll hear a man being praised for what is called a neat bit of work in tying up an opponent. He has no business tying the other up. It's more illegal fighting. If your own hands are free you are allowed to punch with them, and that's all.

"Another thing that gives me a laugh is the fuss that is made over how good some specially chosen referee looked in a big match between two high-class boxers. Who wouldn't look good on an assignment like that? Boxers of that grade don't need any one to handle them. They know what to do, and they do it. You can walk around them and watch their work without trouble. The real job is in handling a couple of husky palookas who don't know a thing except grab, and clutch and hold, and who have to be pried apart repeatedly. Let one of these highly touted referees, who has had his soft spots picked for him, handle a bout like that and see how good he looks."

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE rule that provides for the fining of any ball player caught chatting with customers in the grandstand or bleachers was prompted by a photograph that found its way into the newspapers, showing Gabby Hartnett shaking hands with Al Capone at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

Frank Carideo

Hartnett did it only to oblige the photographers who requested such a pose, but when the club owners saw the picture they frowned. The new rule won't make much of a hit with the umpires, as one of them is supposed to be at the field an hour before game time to play the part of a policeman.

IT MAY NOT happen next season, but the tip comes that sooner or later Frank Carideo will step into the place left vacant by the resignation of Jack Chevigny as backfield coach at Notre Dame. It was all arranged when Carideo was leaving the South Bend school, according to those in the know, and his object in going to Purdue was merely to keep away from Notre Dame until all of his former teammates had passed from college halls there. Bossing old pals whom you have played with is different from bossing players who are strangers. Carideo will stay at Purdue until the last member of his old squad has left Notre Dame, it is said, and then he'll get a call to return to South Bend and join Hunk Anderson, who is understood to be in line for retention indefinitely even though the new contract he has just signed is for only one year.*

By CARL W. SHATTO

The same group of Yellow Jackets who held the Windsor Bulldogs to a 1-1 tie in an overtime battle at Duquesne Garden last night will be sent against the London Tecumsehs here tomorrow, Charley Reid, coach of the local International Hockey Leaguers, announced today.

Last night Reid said that he expected to have the New York Americans' opposition to the Eddie Rodden-Len Grosvenor trade erased today, and to have Len here for the London fray, but this afternoon the Pittsburgh coach said that there was no hope of having Grosvenor in the local lineup before next week.

Reid also said that the appearance here of Red Moore, 200-pound warrior, who was with the Jackets for a time last season, and who arrived in the city yesterday, was without particular significance.

BAXTER TO STAY IN CAGE

Goalie Abbie Cox, who was injured in Detroit Sunday, and who has been in a hospital there since that time, will not return home before tomorrow or Sunday, and Gordon (Sonny Boy) Baxter, Cleveland goalie, who is pinch-hitting for Abbie, will continue to guard the Jackets' cage tomorrow.

This information will not disturb local fans, for Baxter played sensationally in his premiere as a Jacket here last night. He was "on" throughout the engagement, and was particularly brilliant in robbing Robinson and Jack Arbour of what appeared to be certain goals after they had eluded the Pittsburgh defense and had only the goalie to beat.

HAYNES GETS GOAL

The visitors' lone tally, their only score of the season in three games here, was recorded by Haynes, who swept in to lift the puck over Baxter after the latter had made a great save at the expense of Robinson. This meshdenter came at 6:20 in the first period and it was Cliff Barton, who has been a tower of strength at back checking all season, who slammed home the equalizing score at 3:15 in the second stanza. Doc Romnes produced a perfect pass to put Cliff in scoring position—about three feet out from Goalie Dave Kerr's feet.

A few minutes later Kerr took another beating, this time by accident. Leo Reise, in attempting to slam home an assist from Whitey Fields, caught the visiting cage guardian about two inches above the left eye with the tip of his stick, and opened a cut of such dimensions that five stitches were required to close the wound. The game was held up for 15 minutes while Kerr, his face swollen and bloody, received treatment.

OPPORTUNITIES MISSED

Whitey Fields, who battled courageously and untiringly from start to finish, and Cam Proudlock each had two golden scoring opportunities, and each missed when it appeared that a goal was a certainty. Cam lifted the puck over a wide-open cage after receiving a pass from Whitey early in the fight. In the third period Fields shot the rubber over the cage after receiving an assist from Proudlock at the goal mouth. In between, they each missed the net by inches when Goalie Kerr was entirely out of position.

The game was "spotty" in that it was crammed with furious action one minute, and somewhat calm the next. The outcome was not at all satisfying to the locals in that they were not able to cut into the lead of their play-off berth rivals. The lineup:

Pittsburgh (1)		Windsor (1)
Kerr	G	Bassey
Arbour	D	Fraser
Galbraith	D	Reise
Romnes	C	Thomas
Barton	W	Hutton
Fields	W	Milner

Pittsburgh scores: Fields, Gregg, Dunning, Locking, Watts, T. Arbour, Proudlock.

Windsor scores: Brown, Haynes, Huggins, Duguid, Robinson, Quarrie.

First period—Windsor, Haynes (Robinson, Duguid), 6:15. Penalties—Galbraith, tripping; Fraser, holding; Fraser, tripping.

Second period—Pittsburgh, Barton (Romnes), 3:15. Penalties—Reise (major), Duguid, slashing; Dunning, tripping.

Third period—No scoring. Penalty—Fraser, charging.

Extra period—No scoring. Penalty—D. Rucks, elbowing.

Referee—Guy Smith.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Three former Pirate pitchers, John Miljus and Tom Sheehan, righthanders, and Emil Yde, southpaw, will perform for the Hollywood Stars in the Pacific Coast League this season . . . Here's a baseball problem that is agitating the fans in California . . . They had to call in Billy Evans, business manager of the Cleveland Indians and former ace umpire of the American League, for a decision, and they're not yet convinced that even his verdict is correct . . . In a game there was a runner on third base with one out when the batter hit a fly to left field . . . The left fielder leaped, touched the ball and deflected it into the hands of the center fielder, who made the catch . . . As the ball struck the left fielder's glove, the runner on third dashed for home . . . The dispute was over whether the runner should be permitted to score, having left the bag before the ball was legally caught . . . The umpire ruled in his favor . . . George Stovall, former big league manager, asked veteran baseball men for an opinion . . . They were divided.

Emil Yde

Now here is Evans' opinion . . . He agrees with the umpire . . . "The play described is a peculiar one and seldom comes up in a game," Billy replied . . . "However, strictly according to the rules, the runner on third had the right to advance the moment the ball struck the left fielder's glove."

The real name of Jim Londos, the heavyweight wrestling champion, is Chris Theofeles . . . And Ray Steele is Peter Sauer, and Strangler Lewis is Robert Fredericks . . . In the indoor track and field games in Boston a few nights ago, they had a false start in a dash event when a cameraman flashed a picture with the athletes waiting for the starter's gun . . . Comes this belated boost for Ted Yarosz, local welterweight boxer, who defeated tough Jimmy Hill, the Filipino, in their 10-round bout in Detroit recently, fighting with a rebroken right hand from the third round on . . . It is from the typewriter of Frank MacDonell, of the Detroit Times, a Hearst newspaper . . . MacDonell writes: "A big bow to Teddy Yarosz. Any time a kid can come along and smack a tough monkey like Jimmy Hill goofy, and do it with a busted paw to boot, I have to admit he is tough and game enough . . . This same Yarosz, with good hands, likely can whip any welterweight in the land, and that goes for Jackie Fields, the champion, too."

Speaking of the Olympic Games winter sports now under way at Lake Placid, N. Y., do you remember back in 1920 when Joe McCormick, of the Pittsburgh hockey team, then an amateur outfit, captained an American squad in an unofficial tournament in connection with the Olympics at Antwerp and bested all opposition until it ran afoul of a 2-0 defeat by the Canadian stars? . . . Fighting on a double windup card and shifted from the semi-final spot to the top post, Guy Salerno, the California middleweight, got less than 100 smackers for his knockout victory over Jocko Walters at the Moose Temple Wednesday night, but he took the bout to break in and show his stuff here. . . . Now he's an overnight sensation and figures to clean up in these parts so long as he continues to flash the same brand of fighting he did in this swell debut. — HARRY KECK.

WOOD BREAKS SPEED MARK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—(INS.)—Gar Wood, white-haired American speed king, established a new world water speed record here today by driving his Miss America IX over the Indian Creek course at the speed of 111.712 miles an hour.

Wood on his first two runs today broke Kaye Don's official world mark of 110.223 miles an hour and his own unofficial record of 110.785 established last week.

Elapsed time for the southward run was 36.87 seconds, and for the northward run 37.35 seconds.

The average speed was figured in statute miles an hour. The run was made over a measured nautical mile course.

Wood's speed was 1.489 miles an hour faster than that of Don when he set the world record on Lake Garda, Italy, last July.

International Yachtsman's Association rules required that he exceed Don's mark by half a mile an hour to establish a new record.

The veteran racer said he was "happy to bring the world speed boat record back to America."

HAMILTON, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Reports that Lloyd Jordan, assistant football coach and basketball coach at Colgate, was considering an offer from Miami University at Oxford, O., were verified today.

It was understood that Miami had asked him to become head football coach.

Andy Kerr's assistant was a football and basketball captain while playing with Pittsburgh. He came to Colgate in 1928.

Capebianco Signs At Aliquippa Club

WESTINGHOUSE, SCHENLEY IN BIG TEST

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Both sections of the City Senior League swing back into action this afternoon after a week of inactivity due to the annual February graduations.

Interest locally, however, centers on the outcome of the Schenley-Westinghouse game in Section I as a victory for Coach Walter Gross' Bellefielders will give the Red and Black undisputed possession of first place Fifth Avenue, deadlocked with Schenley for the top position, is not scheduled for league competition.

Westinghouse hasn't won a league contest this season and should not extend the Grossmen.

Other Section I settos find Peabody at Connelley and South at Allderdice. Taylor Allderdice will be out to turn the tables on Grover Washabaugh's charges for a lacing handed it earlier in the season.

The Section II frays find Allegheny at Perry in the feature clash. In other battles, Oliver is at Allegheny vocational and Langley at Carrick.

Perry, boasting four victories in six league starts, will make a determined effort to check the winning streak of Springer's Allegheny quintet. The North Siders, who are leading the way in Section II, have won six successive league contests.

Braddock defends its hold on first place in Section VIII by clashing with Scott High, winner of the state championship last winter. Braddock already holds a victory over the Reedmen and will be eager to make it two straight tonight. The game will be played at Braddock, and if Ham Hudson's leaders can take the measure of the visitors, Braddock virtually is assured of the sectional championship.

W. & J. Denies Wray Will Get Grid Berth

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 5.—An emphatic denial tinged with some exasperation was made by President Ralph C. Hutchison that Lud Wray, former Pennsylvania all-America star and coach has practically been assured of the football coaching position at Washington and Jefferson.

"There is absolutely no basis for such a report," Dr. Hutchison said. "Wray is merely one of several applicants for the place, but he has been given no more consideration than any other."

Pittsburgh's new temple of swat, Eddie Kapphan's arena, will be thrown open to the public tonight with a main bout billing that would do credit to many a larger fight emporium.

Billy Jones, of Philadelphia, and George Pavlick, of Johnstown, are the windup principals. Jones is a former local Negro boy who went away to make good and now is the ranking contender for the world light-heavyweight title. He defeated Maxie Rosenbloom, the champion, in a non-title bout at Motor Square Garden last season, and now is a finalist in the N. B. A.'s elimination tournament in the Chicago Stadium, where he stopped Battling Boro his last time out.

Pavlick, a former Johnstown youth, has developed into a corking good boxer and puncher as a stablemate of Johnny Risko and shapes up as a great prospect.

Davy Grove, of the North Side, and Billy Holt, of Homewood, who recently halted Grove's winning streak at the Garden, meet in a return bout in the eight-round semi-final. Charley Brodd, of McKeesport, and Carl Gross, of Braddock, heavies, are in the second bout and Mike Thomas and Sharkey Lesko box the opener, at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Angelo Mazzeo is refereeing out a stiffening card in the Moose Rocky Lew Tendler wrestling bout Wednesday night. The Jersey City heavyweight drew two knockdowns from Jack Terry's middleweight who was a ten-pound underdog. Charley Walters, a few nights ago, "fixed" Terry's goat. This guy Walters is a corker. He's one of the fairly few that Paul Gerard is drawing a return bout with, after stopping Joe in two rounds a week ago.

The Howard A. C., in Beaver Falls, will hold another amateur boxing show tomorrow night.

The two are hoping Tony Canzoneri, the former N. Y. welterweight, does not knock out Sammy Mandell, in Indiana, as he is expected to, and George Franks in the same ring, for they are anxious to see if the fat boy can fight over a route. He stopped Franks in two rounds, and then Franks quit and refused to fight after a round or two on the plea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Duquesne University suffered its second straight defeat of its metropolitan district basketball invasion last night, bowing to Manhattan College, 29 to 23. The Pittsburghers lost to St. John's, of Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

Duquesne put up a stiff argument, although Manhattan always seemed to be in command. The locals had a lead of 18-11 at half time and coasted in during the second half.

The Pittsburghers used a zone defense with little effect. Jasper passing enabling the Green to make many gaps in it. During the second half, Manhattan kept the ball in back court to draw Duquesne out of their arranged defense, without impairing its attack to any great degree.

The Dukes meet the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus team tonight. The lineup:

GENEVA WINS LEAD

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 5.—The leadership of the tri-state conference went to Geneva, last night, as it defeated Grove City, 32-29, on the Beaver Falls High floor.

Grove City jumped into an early lead by caging three fouls although three buckets put Geneva out ahead 6-3. The Crimson tied the count at six, but a clicking Geneva offense kept the Covenanters in front all the first half and they led 18-15 at the half.

Grove City gradually pulled up finally in the second half, going ahead by a 22-21 score.

With six minutes to go Ransom sunk a foul under the basket to give Geneva the lead again, 28-25, and the victor never was headed thereafter. The lineup:

BUC HOLDOUT SITUATION IS SERIOUS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirate holdout situation is believed to be getting quite serious as the date of departure of the first squad nears. The pitchers and catchers and several others are due to leave one week from next Wednesday.

The report reaching the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph from Chicago yesterday relative to the contract troubles of Secondbaseman Tony Piet indicate that the promising young infielder is much perturbed over the matter.

RETURNS FIVE CONTRACTS

Piet states he has sent no less than five contracts back as unsatisfactory. Tony asserts the local club is attempting to sign him on a minor league salary.

The two Waner boys are holdouts, as are Larry French and Ervin Brame, while there may be some trouble in connection with Heinie Meine's 1932 pay. Meine had a banner season last summer and he is said to be seeking an advance.

George Grantham's departure yesterday to the Cincinnati Reds reduced the Pittsburgh squad to 30 players, but this does not mean that the Buccos will have so few in at the spring training camp.

VAUGHN NOT ON ROSTER

Take the case of Shortstop Floyd Vaughn for example. The Wichita sensation, who is expected to make a big fight for Tommy Thevenow's job, is not even on the Pittsburgh roster.

Vaughn will be in camp along with others whom Art Griggs, Wichita pilot, may bring along. The kid shortfielder resides near Los Angeles. He was on hand with Griggs last season and he is likely to be carried by the Pirates this year, even if he does not dislodge Thevenow.

The Wichita club has been transferred to Tulsa, where the financial return should be heavier. Griggs will remain as boss of the Pirate farm.

GRANTHAM PLEASED

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—George Grantham, sold by the Pittsburgh Pirates to the Cincinnati Reds yesterday, announced himself as pleased by the transaction. Grantham will join the Reds provided the terms are satisfactory, he announced.

ANDERSON MADE HEAD COACH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Heartily "Hunk" Anderson will lead Notre Dame's football army another year under the title of head coach, and assisted by a trio of stars of the 1931 campaign. His assistants, named yesterday by Director of Athletics Jess Harper, are

Like Anderson, all were given one-year contracts.

Ruggirello Fights Schaaf in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—A cracked rib has lifted Salvatore Ruggirello, big Italian heavyweight, out of the ranks of the preliminary boys into a 15-round feature bout against Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The cracked rib was suffered by Paulino Uzcudun, veteran Spaniard, and forced Paulino to withdraw from the Schaaf bout in Ruggirello's favor.

Ruggirello knows little about boxing and apparently cares less but when he hits them they stay hit.

PANETIAN VICTOR

PHIL PERKINS IN SEMI-FINAL

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—T. Philips Perkins, who once wore the British amateur crown, had hard going yesterday in the quarter finals of the national championship of golf club champions, but won from J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., 1 up. Robert E. Wingate, Jacksonville, former national public links champ, lost to Robert H. Lansdell, veteran Hackensack, N. J., player, 2 and 1.

Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, improved his chances to get into the final by trouncing Robert L. Wilson, Brookline, Mass., 2 up.

In the semi-finals today, over the 36-hole route, Perkins will meet Lansdell and Toomer will face Mitchell.

MISS VAN WIE EXTENDED

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Chicago women golfers won their matches in the opening round of the Los Angeles mid-winter golf championship here yesterday. Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, had a hard time disposing of Helen Luscombe, University of California, a Los Angeles co-ed, 1 up, on the nineteenth.

Marion Hollins, of Santa Cruz, Cal., former national champion, won easily over Mrs. Kenneth Carter, of Pomona, Cal., 4 and 3.

Mrs. Roy Green, of Culver City, Cal., defeated Mrs. Vernon Campbell, of Los Angeles, 7 and 6.

Mrs. Leona Cheney, the former Mrs. Leona Pressler, of San Gabriel, Cal., was hard pressed to win from Mrs. C. J. Woerner, of Hollywood, 2 up, on the nineteenth.

ROVERS PLAY DOUGLAS

By TOM BIRKS

Two soccer games are carded for tomorrow afternoon. Clan Douglas, defending champion of the Central League, will meet the Pittsburgh Rovers, at Leslie Park, in a league contest, and the Union Switch outfit will stack up with Westinghouse in an exhibition fray at Swissvale.

Douglas, naturally, will play its best to beat the Rovers to stay in the league race with Union Switch. In the exhibition game at Swissvale, nothing depends on the outcome, except the condition of the players. Union Switch must wait until the Douglas league protest is decided. The cup final is many weeks away, so exhibition games will be the order of things out Swissvale way.

On Sunday, all soccer roads will lead to South Park where the national amateur champions, the Akron Goodyears, play in defense of their title against the Shannon Morrys.

GREEN LEAVES HOSPITAL

Aaron Gray, Homewood Negro who received his jaw in a bout with Carl Huckleback, at Moose Temple, Tuesday night, was discharged from Passavant Hospital yesterday. Huckleback, in the third round, hit Negro Kaiser and put out the count after the six-round bout was finished.

Y. M. H. A. WINS

Y. M. H. A. won from the Cumberland Kazoos 34 to 22, on the Rockhill court last night. The Mayhawkers trailed at the half by only five points.

VANITIES TAKE EIGHTH

The Gotham Vanities copped their eighth game of the season last night, trimming the Flower Club girls, at Springdale, Pa., 21 to 15.

OLYMPIC ICE STARS PLAN TO 'BOLT'

OLYMPIC STADIUM, LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Members of the Norwegian, Sweden and Finnish speed skating delegations called a meeting today to decide whether they will withdraw from the 10,000 metres preliminaries late today and protest the American manner of conducting the Olympic speed skating events.

Bitterness has developed in the Scandinavian camps over the failure of their champions, and defending Olympic titleholders such as Bernt Evensen and Ivar Ballangrud, to race effectively under the American system of man-to-man competition instead of racing in lanes and against time as they do abroad.

JACK SHEA WINS AGAIN

Jack Shea, Lake Placid boy, today flashed home five yards ahead of the field to add the 1,500 meters Olympic speed skating championship to the 500 meters title he won yesterday.

Shea flashed home to his double triumph in 2 minutes 57 5-10 seconds, five yards in front of Alex Hurd, speediest of the three Canadians who wiped out all foreign opposition in the preliminary heats to qualify with three members of the United States team.

Two Canadians followed Hurd across the line, Bill Logan and Frank Stack, Dominion speed champion, in that order. Ray Murray, of New York, was fifth, and Herb Taylor, also of New York, sixth.

Shea's time, 2 minutes 57 5-10 seconds, was good for the course, swept by a sharp, cold wind with a ton of snow in the air.

Irving Jaffee, of New York, yesterday won the 5,000 meters race.

U. S. HOCKEY TEAM 'COPS'

The United States team swamped Poland, 4 to 1, today in its second appearance in the Olympic hockey series. The U. S. skaters yesterday lost to Canada, 2-1, in an overtime game, while Poland was losing to Germany, 2-1.

Shea's second victory today, and the addition of Taylor's and Murray's points, gave the United States a commanding lead in the unofficial point score. The United States has 43 points, Canada 25 and Norway 8.

PITT MITTMEN BOX SYRACUSE

Joe Orsini, Pitt boxing coach, who takes his thus far undefeated mitt team to Syracuse to meet the Orange leather pushers tomorrow, still is very much up in the air regarding his starting lineup. He is minus a certain starter in the 115-pound class, and he is not certain about the condition of Warren Heller, his football halfback 175-pounder.

Norman McCormack, the regular 115-pound scrapper, is still on the sidelines with a broken nose, and Orsini is trying to train Harry Conti down to the 115-pound limit, and substitute Joe Namlik in the 125-pound division.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Alcohol First Important Company to Propose Capital Reduction

The first important company to move toward a reversal of the mode of capital adjustment ruling prior to and through most of 1929 is the American Commercial Alcohol Company. In the spring of 1929 that company was one of the many which undertook a capital adjustment involving a split-up of its shares on a two-for-one basis. Now, however, the proposed capital adjustment is destined to take the opposite direction. That is the company has proposed to stockholders for a vote next April, that the par value of its shares be increased from $10 to $20 and one new share be given in exchange for each two shares now outstanding. This would halve the total now outstanding and naturally result in a more attractive earnings basis for the reduced total of shares.

In some quarters the New York Stock Exchange loan report for January, which showed such borrowings reduced more than $75,000,000 to a new minimum, was scanned for evidence of a change in the direction of the flow of "other" money. The Federal Reserve figures have reflected the edict by the New York Clearing House prohibiting members from placing "other" or corporation funds in the collateral loan market. The Stock Exchange return might be interpreted as lending color to the contention that such money is now moving through private and foreign banking agencies. Stock Exchange loans made by banks and trust companies in New York City showed a shrinkage of about $80,100,000 during January, while loans secured by members from private banks and other agencies increased by about $5,500,000, almost all of it on demand.

So far as brokers' holdings of stocks on marginal accounts for customers are concerned, the market, to all intents and purposes is practically on a "cash" basis. At any rate the ratio of brokers' borrowings to the open market value of listed securities, when made public by the stock exchange shortly, should show a sharp drop to a new record low level. The further contraction of $75,141,871 reported in member borrowings by the stock exchange, contrasts with an indicated increase of around $550,000,000 in the open market value of listed stocks during January. With stock exchange loans down to a new low of $512,017,942, or approximately at the same level as those reported by the Federal Reserve, and the indicated open market value of stocks at roughly $27,200,000,000, the ratio as of February 1, last, should be found to have stood around 1.88 per cent, against 2.20 per cent on January 1, last.

After analyzing the estimated wage savings of the leading railroads, brokers specializing in rail securities reached the conclusion that the carriers' position will be materially eased. It is not generally believed, however, that the reduced wage bills will enable roads which suspended dividends to resume distributions in the near future, unless traffic shows real improvement.

Reports are widely circulating again that Coca Cola Company directors plan to place the stock on a regular $8 a share annual dividend basis. It is argued that such action would be justified as earnings for 1931 are likely to be in the neighborhood of $11.75 a share on the stock. Dividend payments in the past have been on a regular $7 a share annual basis, with an extra dividend of $1 a share per year.

Best & Co's year ended last Saturday and the financial district is adhering to the estimate that earnings will be about $3.25 a common share. It is contended that such a showing must be viewed as encouraging, because of the general business depression which existed during the entire period.

BROKERS LOANS AT NEW LOW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City, decreased $8,000,000 during the week ended February 3, to $505,000,000. This is a new record low and compares with $513,000,000 in the preceding week, and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

FIND FINANCIAL JUDGMENT LIMITED

Many Even in Wall Street Have Cramped Perspective; Isolation Sometimes an Aid

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Feb. 5.—Jacob H. Schiff, outstanding financier of the last generation, once remarked when queried about building a fortune that he never tried to buy at the very bottom nor to sell at the top.

This aphorism was recalled today by the receipt of an inquiry from a reader located in rural California, who said: "Living in the sticks with cash to invest, I hesitate to rely entirely on my own judgment, which is limited. Kindly give me a few stocks which you consider a safe and good investment."

Mr. Rukeyser

Incidentally, for the benefit of the modest inquirer, let it be said that in the last 30 months many persons located in the great cities—yes, in Wall street itself—have discovered limitations in their own investment judgment. Sometimes being at a distance from Wall street heightens investment perspective. The street itself is too much influenced by the immediate tone of the ticker, which reflects speculative maneuvers. Until doomsday, conditions will never be as bad as Wall street imagines when in a blue funk, nor as promising as the street envisages when in a frenzy of optimism.

Sometimes isolation prevents an investor from hearing so much that isn't sound. A rural capitalist amassed a fortune by building up cash reserves until conditions became so spectacularly panicky that the financial situation received mention in the county weekly newspaper. At such a signal, he would buy for cash stocks of outstanding corporations. He would hold on to them for a period of years until the speculative pot boiled over so feverishly on the up side that the county newspaper again took cognizance of the money market. Then he would sell.

RISKS VARY

To attempt an answer to the question, no stock is really a safe investment. As a matter of fact, absolute safety does not exist in the financial world. Securities entail risks of varying intensity. There are times in the economic cycle when only bonds of the very highest grade entail safety of principal. At other times, equities—common stocks—offer the best avenue to conservation and appreciation of capital. For the scientific investor, safety is sought not through lucky strikes, but through utilization of the principle of wide diversification of risks. It might be difficult to pick any one corporation that will certainly be thriving a decade hence, but it ought not be hard to select a list of 20 sound companies.

He can best serve his life financial needs by following a balanced, rather than a lopsided, financial diet. A balanced diet would include reserves of cash, adequate insurance, some high-grade bonds, some medium-grade bonds, selected high-grade preferred stocks, and an array of common stocks.

STOCK MARKET SAGS IN LIGHT SELLING

Rail Shares Are Notably Heavy; Telephone, Steel Many Other Leaders Off

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—The stock market slipped out of its narrow trading rut on the down side today, but with scant acceleration of trading.

The rather marked sag, despite decidedly light selling pressure, was regarded in brokerage circles as indicating that traders were waiting to see whether the low levels of early January would be penetrated. Failure of the list to meet support at those levels would be interpreted bearishly.

Rails were again notably heavy. Norfolk and Western and Delaware and Hudson lost about 6 points in a thin market, and declines of 2 to more than 3 appeared in Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, New Haven, Santa Fe, Rock Island and Union Pacific. Other issues off 2 or more included United States Steel, American Telephone, du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "B", Eastman, Case and others, while declines of a point or so were numerous. Coppers and oils sagged fractionally.

In the rails, the coal carrying roads were particularly heavy.

While the wage rate reduction has been regarded in financial quarters as highly constructive it is pointed out that real benefits will depend upon a revival of freight movement. The announcement of the Pennsylvania that it would seek a loan from the reconstruction Finance Corporation to aid in its electrification program, provided another indication of the difficulties which the leading systems are having in raising funds.

Nevertheless, the steel industry is still hopeful of a substantial amount of business from the railroads as a result of the lower wages and probable aid from the Reconstruction Corporation.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement, showing an increase of $42,000,000 in currency in circulation, was regarded as disappointing in several quarters.

The weekend business and mercantile reviews continued to report marked quiet in most lines, although some of the lighter lines are showing seasonal pickup.

The money market was a little easier, with some call money offered ¾ of 1 per cent under the official 2½ per cent rate. Federal funds dropped to 2½-2¾ per cent from 3-3¼ yesterday.

GMO WORKERS' FUND GROWING

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP.)—Employes of General Motors Corporation, who began putting something by for a rainy day six years ago are now collecting more than $2 for each dollar put by.

The corporation is now distributing $7,862,459 in cash and stock to 30,222 of its employes who invested in its savings and investment fund class of 1926.

Each employe who invested $300 in the fund is receiving $661.71 in cash and stock. The stock is valued as of December 31, or at $22.62 a share, which is only $1.37 above's today's final price in the stock market.

Of the $661.71 received, $300 is the original investment, $114.35 an interest payment, and the remainder is in 10.93 shares of General Motors stock.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, said that 50 per cent more employes are sharing in this year's distribution than shared in last year's.

The savings and investment fund classes have been operating for the past 13 years, and eight classes have matured. Employes have received $56,189,195, including 1,597,844 shares of stock.

DICKINSON SEES BUILDING GAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—(AP)—President A. E. Dickinson, of the Indiana Limestone Company, said today that a gradual upward line on the nation's building chart should be registered during the next six months. This statement he based on a systematic survey by the company. He said:

"Signs indicate the bottom has been touched in the three-year building slump. Basic factors point to a slow rise, with the movement gaining momentum as the year progresses.

"The long period of inactivity has created a backlog of what should prove to be a surprising amount of building in certain types. In latest reports from various sections, a shortage of home building is indicated. With a definite business turn, observers believe this type of construction will get under way, with a spreading out of families who have occupied dwellings jointly."

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Lily Lou Frowns on Sister's Demand to Stay Away From Boy Friend

eyes closed, limp hand dangling. "Have a good lesson?" she asked, and then before Lily Lou could answer she added, "Lord, I'm tired. This business of working all day and then coming home and working all night!"

Raymond looked up sharply. "Nobody asked you to work. You can stay home if you want to!"

"No, thanks—not on your salary. I want to own a house and car before I'm too old to enjoy life."

"Yes, but you work too hard." Lily Lou went over and touched May's hand gently.

THE LUCKY ONE

She was filled with a strange excitement. She was thinking about the Sargent's house, one station away. Bright, rich, witty people there. People you read about in the society columns.

"You're the lucky one," May was saying. "You've got your music, and once you get started it won't be work day and night for you. Believe me, if I had your chances when I was young. . . ."

"I know." Lily Lou got up and walked to the window. It was true, what May said. They were all singers, all the Lansings. Aunt Dolly, who used to sing ballads while she worked, and Dad. . . Dad, way up in the sixties, still had the remains of a tenor that would bring a lump into your throat when he sang "Silver Threads" and "Seeing Nellie Home" and all the other old ones, and though he didn't know one note from the other, he could play all the melodies he knew with one hand on the piano, and sometimes he'd put in a melodious, if not very interesting, bass with the other hand, though how he ever did it with his stiff, thick fingers. . . . Both the boys had voices, too. The minister always wanted them to sing in the choir, but they wouldn't. . . . Even Bess. Lily Lou knew that the lullabies that Bess sang to her babies were pure lyric soprano, and May had the voice, too, though a neglected throat condition had thickened it.

KEN PHONES

Still . . . they needn't all expect everything of her like a show horse! She got tired too . . . she might want . . . want something different, some time. . . .

Her fingers drummed on the window sill. . . . Up went her voice, golden, lovely. . . .

"Oh quanti occhi fisi. . . ." The haunting melody from Butterfly.

"Aren't you taking it too fast?" May inquired from her couch.

"No!" Lily Lou began again. "Oh quanti. . ." Broke off. "Oh! That's the telephone. I'll answer!"

"Let Raymond. It's one of the pesky lodge brothers, I'm sure."

But Lily Lou got there first. "Hello!" It was her singing voice, melting, honey-sweet.

Raymond looked at May, and May looked at Raymond. They listened.

"You're sure you can get away. Well, it would be fun. Still, it's late. . . well, just for a little ride. In five minutes. Are you sure you know the house? I'll be ready!"

Lily Lou hung up the receiver. Two bright spots burned in her cheeks. She looked right through May, faintly smiling, obviously not seeing her at all.

IRE AROUSED

Lily Lou came back to earth. "Ken Sargent." Her voice sounded a trifle belligerent. She moved toward the door.

"Ken Sargent . . . KEN SARGENT! Lily Lou Lansing, not that Sargent that used to come up to the lake years ago?"

A nod from Lily Lou.

"Ken Sargent! Where did he come from?"

"Met him on the boat."

"Humph. It's a wonder he'd speak."

"Why is it a wonder he'd speak?"

"Oh, don't be silly. If you've forgotten how the Sargents treated us, I haven't. Poor white trash, that's what they thought we were! Snobs! I'll never forgive that woman—"

Lily Lou rattled the door knob. "Well, he's taking me riding."

Silence.

She got half way down the hall.

"Lily Lou! Did you say tonight? NOW?"

"Yes."

"But you can't! Tonight's the night Laura comes after her choir rehearsal. She'll be here any minute."

"I know. You entertain her."

WASTING MONEY

"Entertain her!" May snorted. She dragged herself from her couch, shuffled out to the hall. "I entertain her, when she comes to play accompaniments for you for 50 cents? You must be crazy!"

"Just for tonight. One night off. Please, May—don't get tragic! My goodness, it's only 50 cents!"

May clutched at her trailing kimona. Her dark eyes snapped. "Fifty cents. Throw your money away if you like. Only I've seen the time when 50 cents looked big to us, and right now . . . But it isn't the money. It's the principle. To think that, after all that's been done for you, you can throw us over for one smile from the first boy that asks you out!"

"He isn't the first boy!"

"I don't care if he isn't. It's the principle. To think that after all that's been done for you—"

"I forbid you to go," May told Lily Lou.

"You said that before. Oh, let me alone! I'm going, I tell you!"

Lily Lou's door closed firmly. May stared at it helplessly. Catching her breath, she trailed back to the dining room.

Raymond hadn't moved. He still held his newspaper suspended in mid-air, his ear cocked for what would follow.

Lily Lou came out, wearing her best coat. May noticed the coat the first thing. Her mouth tightened. "Lily Lou," she said hoarsely, "you can't keep Laura waiting for nothing and make a fool out of me just for that Sargent boy who's only laughing at you anyway—"

"I'm going, May."

"You can't! I forbid you. You're living here in my home, under my protection—"

"I pay board. You can't tell me—"

"Let her go, Maisie. Aw, don't expect too much of the kid. Irene's the same way—"

"Lily Lou, if you go, after all that's been done for you, I'll—I'll—"

A horn honked outside. Lily Lou stood irresolute.

UNEXPECTED GUEST

The front door squeaked on its hinges. Old Mr. Kittridge, Raymond's father, pushed it open cautiously. He stood in the front hall, putting his latch key back in his vest pocket. He was a plump little man, with a pink face, shining bald head and mild blue eyes without visible eyebrows or lashes. He had a way of arriving at the wrong time, and this was one of them.

He beamed at the angry little group at the other end of the hall. "I see a good looking young man waiting outside! Hadsome sport roadster, 1931 model. They don't give them away with toothpaste! And there's Lily Lou, blushing like a rose!" He wagged a playful finger at the red-faced, tight-lipped Lily Lou.

She stood, irresolute still.

Raymond permitted himself a faint guffaw.

"Don't let me keep you, Lily Lou." Mr. Kittridge was divesting himself of his overcoat. "I'll just chin with the folks. You run right along, girlie."

"Try and keep her!" May cut in bitterly. "The great Kentfield Sargent, Third, is honoring us. If a paid accompanist can't keep her, you can't!"

That settled it.

With a last defiant look Lily Lou turned on her heel, walked right past Raymond's father, and out the front door, her coat still on her arm, her hat in her hand.

ALL IN A DAY — By MARK HELLINGER

Visit from an Old School Chum

I WAS SITTING in the office the other afternoon when the man walked in. My secretary should have been in the office as usual—but, as usual, he wasn't. So the man strolled over to me and shook my hand warmly.

"Well, well," he cried enthusiastically, "it's none other than my old pal, Mark. I'd know you anywhere. The years haven't changed you too much, except that you've grown stouter. It sure is a pleasure to see you again, old scout. It most certainly is."

I glanced at my watch. I had exactly 40 minutes to finish my column. There seems to be an unwritten law that pests must always annoy you when you want least to be disturbed. But, somehow or other, I managed a smile.

"I'm happy you're glad to see me," I told him, "but I've got a terrible confession to make. I don't remember you."

He looked completely grieved.

"That's a surprise to me," he muttered. "My name's Brown. Why, you and I went to high school together. We were great pals. Why, I was right by your side the time you led that strike and they almost expelled all of us. Look at me again. Don't you remember your old friend, Brownie?"

Time was flying. This was going to be delightful. I began to grow nervous.

"Yes, yes," I cried. "I remember now all right. Glad to have seen you again. If you'll drop in some time when I'm not so busy, I'll be glad to have a long chat with you. We'll talk about Prof. John R. Sims and all the rest. But right now—"

I blinked. Mr. Brown was laughing heartily. That worried me. Did you ever meet a man who laughed loudly over nothing at all? If you do, watch out for him.

"I understand, Mark," he chuckled. "I'm a man who always takes a hint. That's been my motto all my life. You're busy, eh?"

"Something like that," I admitted.

He nodded.

"That's okay with me then," he asserted. "I'll come to the point right away." He reached into his pocket and drew forth a document. "Here you are."

I didn't need a lawyer to tell me that it was a subpena. And in connection with a most annoying case that had happened some two years before. While visiting another city I had had occasion to visit a doctor. He thought it would be very nice to charge me $50 a visit—which, of course, I refused to pay. After accepting a compromise figure he had evidently decided that there was a chance of getting more. So here he was, suing me for the balance.

"Sorry I had to do this, Mark," said Mr. Brown as I examined the subpena, "but business is business. Well, so long."

He turned toward the door and I leaped into action.

"Just a minute, my pal," I cried loudly. "Come back and sit down here. Would you like to have a little drink?"

The process server wheeled around with the greatest of alacrity. He broke all existing records for returning to a chair.

"Don't mind if I do," he stated. "Don't mind if I do."

I poured him a drink. He swallowed it in a gulp. I poured him another. That went just as quickly. I poured him a third. And then I began to talk.

"Brownie," I murmured softly, "when you first stepped in here did you think I didn't remember you? Ah, my friend, how wrong you were! I acted the way I did because I didn't want to remember. And do you want to know why, Brownie? I'll tell you.

"It was because you brought back memories that were peaceful and sweet; memories that would hit me so hard that I would never be able to finish my column. Don't you remember how wonderful everything was when we were kids in high school? How we talked about our ambitions, and how you were one of the best friends a fellow ever had?

"Remember how we both worked for the same high school paper? The Stadium, wasn't it? And that time the girl from Hunter—"

Mr. Brown interrupted me.

"I never worked on the paper," he said, "and I didn't know any girls from Hunter."

I drummed my desk and managed something of a romantic look.

"Well, well," I went on, "that only shows you how poor my memory is getting. But it doesn't really make any difference, does it? The fact remains that we did go to school together. And now, after all these years, you hand me a subpena. Have another drink.

"Do you think that's fair? After all the things we've been through together? Have you so soon forgotten the war? The Red Cross nurses? The inferno that—"

"I never went to war," was Mr. Brown's second interruption.

He wasn't going to stop me now.

"That makes no difference, either," I continued rapidly. "Good heavens, man, where is your sense of decency? How can you have the heart to walk in here and give me this piece of paper—me, probably the very best friend you ever had."

He stood up and reached out his hand.

"You're right, Mark, he sighed. "I can't do it. Give me that subpena."

I did exactly as he requested. I'm very nice that way. He said goodby. I returned a more fervent one. He walked a few steps, turned, came back and slapped the paper down once more.

"Nothing doing," he grunted. "You've got to take this. I have a wife and a child up in the Bronx, and they need money. I'll get two bucks for this job. I'm sorry, but that's the way it stands."

I drew out a $5 bill.

"Here you are, Brownie," I said softly. "You're now making $5 instead of $2. And all you have to do is to forget about serving me with that paper.

"I wouldn't mind taking that subpena. I'll have to do it eventually anyhow. But I'm so terribly busy right at this time that a court visit would drive me daffy. You can understand that, can't you?

"With the extra money, buy a little something for the wife. Tell her it came from your old school chum—from your old pal who was glad to shake your hand again. Have another drink."

This time the process server reached the end of the road. He took the subpena and ripped it into bits. He extended a paw.

"Mark," he enthused, "you're white. I'll never forget you for this. That five bucks helps me more than you'll ever know. It's been a real pleasure to see you again."

I looked at my watch. Twenty minutes left to finish the column. I wheeled my machine in place and began to type.

"Okay, Brownie," I muttered. "So long."

He swallowed his last drink. For what seemed to be the fiftieth or sixtieth time, he began to walk toward the door. A bit unsteadily this time—but walk just the same. As he opened the door he talked.

"Hey, Mark," he murmured pleasantly, "Will it be all right if I serve you tomorrow instead?". . .

ONCE OVERS
By J. J. Mundy

At times you are surprised at the mean impulses you have.

Knowing yourself, isn't it a good thing that you are not situated so that you could carry out some of your despicable ideas?

Undoubtedly there are many you would punish physically, if you could.

Others you would crush financially if you had the strength to do so.

In your belligerent sort of thinking there comes to you every now and then some criminal suggestion to pay back some way those who have thwarted you.

Perhaps it is a good thing that you are not able to carry out some of your many plans for making those suffer who prove an obstacle to you.

Surely you cannot get any satisfaction in such plans.

And if you could carry them out in the end you would suffer most of all.

With so much of interest and so much that is pleasant and elevating in the world, why poison your mind with vindictive currents of thoughts?

Thinking of beautiful things; of kindness, of charity towards others, should add enjoyment to your life in its every day existence.

Do good to your enemies and you may wake up to find them really friends.

Why poison yourself in such a way?

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Managers of the various Warner theaters are preparing for big meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club chapters tomorrow. As an indication of the popularity of this club, we cite this instance.

The capacity of South Hills Theater, Dormont, is 1,220. At the last meeting of the Junior Komic Club, 1,780 children presented themselves for admittance. As a result, when the theater had been filled, an overflow meeting was held in the lobby.

The entertainment consisted of acts staged by members of the chapter. Instrumental, vocal and dance numbers were contributed by Laex Papp, Newton Heisley, Francis Mahoney, Donnice Fair, Mary Papp, Virginia William and Joe Cardilla.

Manager Harry Koch announced a vale, the contest for the meeting tomorrow. Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest, the most novel and the funniest valentines made by members. The picture announced for tomorrow at the South Hills is Buster Keaton in "Sidewalks of New York."

ENRIGHT CHAPTER BAND

Arrangements are being made whereby all chapters will have an opportunity to hear the fine band that has been playing at the Enright Chapter meetings. It is made up of boys from Troop 11, Boy Scouts.

Manager Harry Thomas announces another big program for tomorrow's meeting. This Oakland chapter, by the way, is one of the most up-and-coming. Among the features announced for tomorrow are the Schenley Chapter Band, boy musicians from the School for the Blind, and the banjo trio. In addition to all this, there will be a miniature musical revue staged by students from Jean Boyle's School of Dancing.

A Useful Celebration

The Washington Bicentennial Can Be Made to Do Much For the Welfare of the Nation.

What useful purpose can be served through the George Washington Bicentennial observance? In what way will the public meetings and banquets, the pageantry and oratory contribute to the welfare of the country?

It is a pity that those who may be asking the question—and other persons, too, for that matter—could not hear former Gov. John S. Fisher's informal talk yesterday at the meeting of the George Washington Bicentennial Committee of Allegheny County—for there they would have found the answer.

We suspect there was no one at that largely attended meeting who did not feel prouder to be an American by reason of the things Gov. Fisher told them, and did not resolve, at least in his inner consciousness, to be a better American.

He recited the events in Washington's life that linked him with the history of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania, mentioning not a few with which the average Pittsburgher is unfamiliar and which he should know. He referred to the purity of Washington's character and denounced the slanders to which recent biographers of the cynical school have given currency. And he pleaded for a rebirth of patriotism in connection with the celebration of the 200th anniversary of his birth.

This, as Gov. Fisher said, is the outstanding historical anniversary of the generation now controlling the affairs of the country. The bicentennial of the year that gave Washington to the world will not be surpassed in interest or importance by any other such celebration during the lives of the present Americans.

If the people generally will catch the spirit that marked the meeting of the Bicentennial Committee; if they will study the life of Washington and learn more about the American principles that he represented and the American institutions that he helped to found; if they will interest themselves in public affairs as he did—America will be a happier and more prosperous country.

Every nation is drawn into the Shanghai puzzle. Every World Power has its nationals on the scene, which it must protect, and its interests it must safeguard.

The very air of the Chinese ports is surcharged with explosive possibilities. The slightest misstep may jar the sleeping giant into action.

Tact (extreme tact) is required to handle the situation with the necessary firmness and still avoid embarrassing international complications.

Coolness and caution should govern the action of the commanders of the forces dispatched to the International Settlement by the various powers.

It is no place, nor time, for hotheads.

Speaker Garner Would Make Great President

(Reprinted by special permission, from an article by "The Gentleman at the Keyhole," entitled "Plain Speaking," in the February 6, 1932, issue of Collier's.)

IF Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, who is the driving force of the movement to block the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, succeeds in deadlocking the Democratic national convention, then Speaker John N. Garner will become a serious possibility for the Democratic nomination for President.

He occupies the center of the stage in Washington this year, and he occupies also a strategic position in the Democratic party.

Garner will have in the convention the support of the Texas delegation. It will be necessary for the anti-Roosevelt forces to hold that big delegation away from Roosevelt. And it will be necessary also for them at some stage of the proceedings to split Mr. Roosevelt's southern support; his western support cannot be taken from him.

So if the opponents of the New York Governor develop enough strength to stop Roosevelt on an early ballot, they will almost certainly have to play up to John Garner.

And the Democratic party might do much worse than to make Garner President. In fact, with his lucid mind, his rare skill in handling men, his large experience of Washington, THE SPEAKER WOULD MAKE A GREAT PRESIDENT.

WHEN he became Speaker almost the first thing he did was to give up the car and chauffeur which the government provides for the Speaker of the House—"our car," he used to call it when he occasionally rode home in it with Speaker Longworth—thus saving the government $5,000. Now this act wasn't mere playing to the galleries.

GARNER HAS ALL THE ECONOMICAL INSTINCTS OF CALVIN COOLIDGE. As Democratic floor leader, he had been in the habit of riding to the Capitol on the street cars. And the street cars are good enough for him as Speaker.

He means to save his country a lot of money and he probably wanted to set an example in economy. He did not want it said that while he was paring down expenditures he was himself indulging in the luxury of a car and chauffeur just for a 10-minute ride from his hotel to the Capitol in the morning and another 10-minute ride returning in the evening.

And here I am going to make a prediction—that HE WILL SAVE THE COUNTRY THREE TIMES AS MUCH MONEY IN A YEAR AS DID THE RAPIDAN ECONOMY CONFERENCES WITH ALL THEIR FLURRY AND EXCITEMENT.

He knows where the money goes better than anyone else in Washington and how to stop its going.

GARNER is a man of simple habits and utterly without ostentation. He values power for what he can do with it, not for what it does for him. Office does not puff him up.

He is the same John Garner in the Speakership, the most powerful office in Washington except the presidency, that he is on his ranch in Texas. THAT IS ANOTHER STREAK IN HIM THAT IS LIKE COOLIDGE.

I run the risk of making him out another Coolidge. But aside from his economical instincts and his simplicity, two men more unlike in general cannot be imagined.

He has had more fun out of living his 62 years than Coolidge would get out of a lifetime equal to Methuselah's. He gets fun out of the Speakership, out of the rough and tumble of the House.

HE was the boon companion of Nick Longworth, and that tells the story. You cannot imagine the slow-blooded Coolidge as the chum of Nick Longworth. Garner has vitality and a delight in human companionship.

NOBODY IN WASHINGTON WORKS HARDER THAN HE DOES. He is at his desk in the Speaker's office at 7:15 in the morning, always with Mrs. Garner, who seems to be a partner in all his work. From that time he is incessantly busy until a little party of his friends gathers in his office at 5 o'clock.

The Capitol is not an idle place. There are plenty of men who work hard there for long hours.

But most of them are men who get lost in details. Garner wastes no time on details. He is the kind of man who goes straight to the heart of any problem. He separates the essential from the unessential with a sure instinct. The only details that take up his time are the details of personal relations in the House.

And they are not details—they are ESSENTIALS IN THE LEADERSHIP OF MEN.

THE other night he went to a state dinner at the White House.

"You know," he said to me, "I never eat anything at these late dinners. I eat my dinner at 6 o'clock at night. And I always eat very lightly. That night I ate an apple, some crackers and a glass of milk before I went to the White House, and I ate nothing at the President's table."

When he was elected Speaker, instead of dolling up for the occasion in a frock coat, he wore a reddish brown tweed suit and a reddish necktie.

He does not know that the words "on the one hand, on the other" exist. He never uses them. He is never nicely balanced on the fence on any question.

HIS YES AND HIS NO ARE EQUALLY FINAL. He never makes the mistake of trying to soften a negative by some pleasant, compromising answer.

Bring Reason to Bear

Weigh Results of Pay Slash.

Cooler heads at the Capitol seem to have brought a lull in the fireworks display of those who would slash government salaries.

It is to be hoped that during the lull a dispassionate survey will convince proponents of the cut of the folly of the course which they have chosen.

The bizarre attempt to force through a cut as a rider on appropriation bills was as vicious as it was illogical.

Nobody knew, when the attempt was made, and nobody knows now what such a program would mean.

Those advocating the slash talked of savings of hundreds of millions of dollars.

They could not agree among themselves as to the amount and they could produce no basis for their estimates.

There was no attempt to weigh the disadvantages of the scheme.

Those seeking fame as "watchdogs" of the Treasury wanted to embark the government on a voyage which would have ended in disaster to the good ship "Decent Standard of Living."

Now that there is a pause in the undertaking, the cold light of reason can be turned on the problem.

Impartial committees of Congress can study the situation, weigh the probable results, determine whether or not the economic situation of the country would be benefited or harmed by a catch-penny policy on the part of the nation's biggest employer.

By the time the slash proposal again becomes dominant it is to be hoped that the measures taken by Congress to bolster business will begin to show their effect.

That effect may kill for all time the suggestion of wage cutting.

If it does not, the disposition of the matter should be based upon wise consideration of all the factors.

It should not be settled upon such ridiculous statements as have been made by proponents about $1.00 a day wages and 16-cent eggs.

Fortunate Brookville!

Pittsburgh City Council Should Take a Leaf from the Book of the Jefferson County Town.

The people of Brookville, progressive Jefferson County town, are fortunate. They are not forced to content themselves with grumbling over high electric rates, for aggressive action has been taken to obtain relief.

A hearing on a suit for lower rates was held here by the Public Service Commission Wednesday, and expert testimony was given to the effect that the present value of the plant of the public utility company serving Brookville is less than half the valuation that the company places on it.

Pittsburgh's City Council should take a leaf from Brookville's book and institute proceedings to get lower rates for the people of this city. The assistant city solicitor in charge of public utilities legislation is on record as saying our rates are too high.

An Unchristian Threat

The Champions of the Blue Law Show an Ugly Spirit In New Castle.

Champions of the Blue Law have won a victory in New Castle through the use of questionable tactics.

After Mayor Charles B. Mayne had authorized the movies to give performances next Sunday for the benefit of the destitute the reactionary advocates of a dismal Sunday threatened, if the ban on entertainment were lifted, to disrupt the city's relief work. The liberal Mayor had to capitulate to this unchristian threat.

The incident should strengthen the movement to send to the Legislature only such candidates as will pledge themselves to repeal the Blue Law.

Marry-Go-Round

Risks in the Husband-Market

Married men, like stocks, might be divided into three groups; preferred, common and wild. Those who were born for matrimony, those who have successfully achieved the married state—and those who have had it thrust upon them by fate or a woman.

The preferred risk is a "born" husband. From his cradle, he is marked for the altar—and he never escapes Karma.

He gravitates toward matrimony as surely as the needle toward the magnet. He doesn't even put up a fight for his freedom. He doesn't have to be remodeled or become adjusted. He simply folds up like a jack-knife, into the domestic grooves—and "stays PUT."

* * *

He is just naturally a domestic animal, who enjoys sitting by the fire, curling up on the cushions of the divan, and being let in and out of the door at regular intervals.

Lucky the woman who draws him in the Matrimonial Sweepstakes! Even though she sometimes goes to the grave, never knowing how she has been blessed by Providence. Sometimes, I think that good husbands are the least appreciated people in the world. Women who have them have never tried any other kind. So, they can't KNOW!

The common or garden husband is the man who has achieved that state, after a hard struggle. He may not be such a domestic genius as the born husband; but, on the other hand, he deserves much more credit. For it requires all sorts of self-denial and self-conquest to play the role gracefully, when your talents do not run that way.

A self-made husband may take several years to conquer his bachelor habits and settle down; but if your love and your nerves can stand the strain, the day will probably come when he will acquire "that married look," and become as resigned as the family cat to regular meal-hours and evenings by his own hearthside. Most husbands are like that.

But the wild husband is the one who gets the most free publicity and gives the whole species a bad name.

He was never intended for marriage, and he is as much out of place in the role as a polar bear in a palmgarden or a butterfly in a gold fish bowl. No matter how often he goes to the altar (and, somehow, this kind of man usually goes again and again) his marriage never "takes."

* * *

He is always and to the end, just a married-bachelor, with the carefree, irresponsible spirit of Pan, which can never be named by any woman! Marriage rolls right off him like water off a slicker.

* * *

Why he ever married, nobody knows—least of all himself. But, somehow, the most brilliant and astute women are always ready and willing to take over the task of domesticating him, when they might go in for a nice, safe sport, like lion-taming or raising wildcats.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Thoughts while strolling: Why is Alfred Lunt always billed ahead of Lynn Fontanne? What became of Edythe Baker? And the jabot? A dahlia named for Floyd Gibbons. One word description of George White—hoppity. Mrs. Sime Silverman is a flaming redhead, too.

Ted Woodyard, a Spencer, W. Va., boy who made good in the city. Anyway, bromo seltzer declared a dividend. Doughty old clubmen who suggest cold mutton and chutney. Every man I know named Fritz has a moon-face. And I never knew a Percival to be effeminate. Pepy de Albrew leaving the Waldorf.

Ogden Nash is responsible for that "Stag at Eve" book. Ben Hampton's son, David, is a literary agent with a mustache and everything. And I used to trot him on my knee. The sight of oil cloth always makes me think of scraping the cake icing dish. Maybe I'm exotic! Chrysler's son-in-law, Bryan Foy.

That policeman sauntered behind me for several blocks! If he touches me on the shoulder I'll scream. Amon Carter, of Texas, walks faster than New Yorkers. No. 830 Park avenue, where Will Edrington, Dudley Field Malone and Irvin Cobb live. Nothing looks so tiny and forlorn as a midget.

New York takes on a feverish bustle Fridays. Preparing for the Saturday night out. Who remembers when farmers used to drive to town Saturdays for a haircut and a singe? A little necktie shop called "The Cravat Coop."

Mrs. Messmore Kendall, once Kitty Flynn. And what a pretty name. The fiddling Joe Fejer and his boutonniere. The rush out of office buildings at night—like the twitch of a giant nerve. Two celebrated celibates—Charles Hanson Town and Alexander Woolcott. The most touching of Nature's generosities—dusk.

* * *

Down on the miserably lit water front a riff-raff crew hangs about wholesale fruit and vegetable houses. They are derelicta a great city spews from its depths—unkempt, unshaven and bearing the strong ammonia smell of cheap gin. In the section they are known as "banana chasers." They drift there after fruit ships unload their cargoes of bananas to be transported to the wholesale districts in trucks. Because of the fear of tarantulas regular employes will not handle them.

* * *

One of the "banana chasers" declares the only danger is in not seeing the tarantula in time. Once sighted one has only to stand still and the poisonous creature glides away. But if frightened suddenly it will leap on the victim.

* * *

He hippety-hopped through the Waldorf alley in the manner of a jackdaw, white spatted, wearing an enormous flower in his lapel and exhibiting other pronounced jeanmakinisms. Steve Hannagan looked up from a capacious divan and observed: "The Waldorf still maintains its touch of old rose."

* * *

Incidentally, while loafing in the Waldorf a radio was broadcasting a stirring military march. Unconsciously I found myself stepping up and down a strip of carpet with ungainly fierceness. I'm a fool for marching. But I was not too absorbed to hear one bell boy as he passed another whisper: "General Debility on his way to the front!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

All your life you wanted to be free.

All your life you have been feeling that People and Circumstances were keeping you bound.

First, your mother, holding you firmly on her lap, when you wanted to wiggle down to the floor. How you squalled. Even then your baby mind was certain that life was incomplete. If only you could get out of that confining lap—if only you could crawl at liberty on that large, inviting floor, you would be content. So you squealled and kicked and in time you did get out of your mother's lap and achieve that floor.

But still you weren't content. One floor wasn't enough. If only you could get into the next room.

So your search for freedom started and so it has gone on. Out of baby days into school days—out of dreaming, playing childhood years, into working, loving, fighting, man-and-woman years . . . Always looking for a better chance. Searching for some new arrangement in life that would free you from that curious, secret sense of bondage.

But you have never found it, have you? You have found better jobs. Fallen in love and married. Moved into a new house—a new town. Bought a nicer car. Made a nice little record for yourself in local politics or society. But—you haven't found freedom yet, have you? In spite of all your struggles and achievements you still feel bound. And the older you grow, the more bitter you become.

For of course it isn't your fault—you're sure of that. If you could run things your own way, everything would be jake. But you've never had a chance. Not a real chance. Someone or something has always stood in your way. Your family. Your debts. Your boss. Your lack of education or pull. Perhaps society at large. Always somebody or something has cramped your style. But you still have hopes. You're still searching. Perhaps some day you'll struggle upon that perfect combination which will remove all these handicaps and set you free.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF! YOU NEVER WILL. FREEDOM DOES NOT COME THAT WAY.

Freedom does not lie outside you—it lies within you. You are not bound by the people around you, nor by the outer circumstances of your life. You are bound by your own nature . . . by the weakness and the violence of your own nature.

You don't believe it? Sit down and do ten minutes of honest self-analysis. Stop making alibis. Stop blaming others. Cut out the self-pity—for just 10 minutes. Trace each mishap in your life to its ultimate source. Who was responsible? YOU—YOURSELF! You—yourself—by your own stubbornness, laziness, vanity, stupidity, business, carelessness, cowardice, malice, selfishness, silliness, brought that evil on yourself. Other people became involved. Other people interfered and hurt. But, at the bottom of it all, lay your own cussedness.

AND ONLY BY FIGHTING THAT CUSSEDNESS, WILL YOU EVER ATTAIN FREEDOM.

Remember that quest of Omar Khayyam—

"I sent my Soul through the Invisible,
Some letter of that After-life to spell:
And by and by my Soul returned to me,
And answer'd 'I Myself am Heav'n and Hell.'"

You have only one enemy on earth—YOURSELF.

You have only one partner on earth—YOURSELF.

If you want freedom, you must fight yourself, you must help yourself.

Text For Today Woe unto them that decree unrighteous decrees, and that write grievousness which they have prescribed; To turn aside the needy from judgment, and to take away the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherless!—Isaiah, x:1, 2.
